EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

VOTE the whole Republican ticket.

SEAL you political faith with your ballot.

FOR Treasurer Cyrus Goss is the man for your votes.

SEE that the ticket you vote contains the name of John F. Harter for recorder.

LET your vote constitute one in the majority in favor of Republican principles.

JOHN SULLIVAN, the prize fighter, has signed the temperance pledge for one year.

THE people can always be trusted, and hence a full vote means a Republican victory.

IF you want a man for register who is pure and upright and able, T. M. Gramley is his name.

Do not disfranchise yourself by not voting on the 8th of November. It is political suicide.

THE Democratic party of Pennsylvania has resolved itself into sort of an Anarchist society.

THE Republican party is a friend of the Christian Sabbath; the Democratic party is its enemy.

In all the speeches of President Cleveland during his late tour not one word can be found about Civil Service. There was probably nothing on the subject in the Cyclopedia.

SURELY, the people of Centre county can be trusted to vote for purity in courts, in politics and in all things. If so, they will vote for Daniel Rhoads for Associate Judge.

IF it is true that A. J. Griest, one of the Democratic nominees for Commissioner, said that 75 cents per day is enough for a day's labor, he should be defeated. The assertion seems to be supported by sufficient affidavits.

IT looks as if Mr. Jay Gould has gobbled all he desires to gobble for a month or two and has gone off on a tour. The Philadelphia Press, on Friday, announced his departure, to take place in a day or two after that time.

"JOHN GROVE knows right from wrong," says the Centre county Times. But we fear he has very distorted and incorrect ideas as to what is right and what is wrong, and consequently as associate judge will be a dangerous man.

A VOTE for Daniel Rhoads for associate judge is a vote for a temperance court. Every voter--no matter of what shade of political opinion he may be—should support a man who will lend his influence for the promotion of temperance and order.

FALL ELECTION; WORKINGMEN'S PARTY; DANGEROUS ELEMENT; THE BOODLE KING; PROSPERITY OF THE CITY; AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31st, 1887.

THE ELECTION.

The contest for the November election in New York city is being conducted with the most vigorous enthusiasm by all the parties interested. The old party lines are broken to a large extent—new parties are formed, and the various candidates represent such a combination of old time organizations and new time political influence that the result affords a most interesting and perplexing problem.

The Republicans have nominated one Democrat for the office of District Attorney, and endorsed another for a Judgeship, in order to help on the cause of political reform demanded by the people.

The corrupt rings which have characterized and led the Democracy of this city for years past must be crushed and brought to an end, and which can be done only by the Republican party coming to the aid of honest democrats.

THE WORKINGMEN'S PARTY.

The Henry George and Priest McGlynn's movement—the party of the, Knights of Labor, and its correlative, organizations, the anarchists, socialists, etc., parties, will make deep cuts into the ranks of both the old parties that have so long, alternately, held the reins of government. But this new party, formed of such incongruous elements, and which is now so apparently formidable in many places, will have no long continued being as a political power in this land. It has neither singleness of purpose, nor wide principles of policy, to give it cohesive solidity and force. While the Reverend McGlynn may have the ability to preach and enforce moral and spiritual truths for the good of humanity, he seems but a baby in political science and economy, and in knowledge of the principles which should constitute the very fabric of social and business life; and while Henry George must be admitted to be a man of mental ability and culture—a man of idea, he is still but a theorist, with vagaries for a new social compact which will be found more impracticable than Fourierism, when attempting to conform to itself, and to hold in subjection the unregenerate nature of our common humanity.

The field of Arcadia is not in politics, in law nor in common life; and the better adjustment of social and business conditions, of property possessions, of taxation pro bono publico, and of mutual benefit combination of capital and labor, must be effected by gradual steps as it can never be done by a wrenching leap

THE DANGEROUS ELEMENT.

Something should be done to prevent the immigration to this country of that class who are instigators of rebellion against all forms of government. The noted nihilists, communists, and anarchists, of Europe, rebels and assassins, are allowed to come to this Republic, to preach their doctrines against order, law and government, and to create a following inimical to our institutions, and to all social rights. We do not believe in such freedom, and unless a stop is put to the public utterances of such men as Herr Most and other dynamite anarchists we shall soon come face to face with the most formidable danger that has ever threatened our national peace and prosperity.

THE BOODLER KING.

Jacob Sharp, the king of the boodlers, is still in New York, and his lawyers are far from abandoning their efforts to keep him out of Sing Sing. The "Law's delays" are proverbial in ordinary cases, but when political influence and money are set against conviction, justice has a long and difficult road to travel, and is often defrauded in the end.

PROSPERITY OF THE CITY

This great city was never more prosperous, in all respects, than it is at the present time. The gay season is at hand, and society is on the qui vive for the parties, operas and various social events that every winter characterize this fashionable metropolis. Sixth avenue is the central thoroughfare of the retail trade of this city, and already the holiday goods are becoming a brilliant attraction in the palatial stores of this avenue, as also on Fourteenth and Twenty-third Streets.

AMUSEMENTS.

Many of the readers of the REPUBLICAN have undoubtedly visited New York and they will remember Madison Square, the famous place for Barnum's and other big shows. Well, this whole square is to be built over with the highest and grandest building for entertainments that has ever been erected in the United States. In an other letter I will give a description of what this is to be. All our leading theatres begin the season with rich promises of success. And now, friend Tuten, when any of your readers get tired of the monotony of life in Bellefonte, or in Centre county, just give them a week's leave of absence, and a "free pass" to New York, and they will find an entertainment in "sight seeing" in this great city, such as will yield them happy memories for years to come.

HIRAM TORREY.

THE democrats are trying to divert attention from the fact that Grove has made a trade with the whiskey men by saying that Rhoads would be under the control of the President Judge. We answer that Mr. Grove would be under the control of the worst element in the community. All who know Mr. Rhoads personally know how foolish is the charge that he would be under control of any man or influence. He is a man who all his life has occupied positions of trust and importance. He has all his life been in positions where he had to be above control, where he was the master and not the servant of others, and where his word was law. He is a man of the purest morals and without saying anything to the disrespect of others, there is no man in Centre county who would be so little likely to be moved by any influence whatever; and in a question of right he would be as firm as the granite that underlies the continent. All who know him personally know this is true. He is a man who will make no pledges; he has made none. Some of his opponents are reporting that he has made pledges to us. This is not true, he has made no pledges to anyone. He needs to make none, for all should know that he is not an ordinary man that must be bound down by promises as a guarantee that he will do right. Every man who desires to vote for a pure man will vote for him. We care not what his politics may be—you prate about wanting pure men in office; here is an opportunity to elect one. Will the people seize the opportunity? We believe they will.

EX-SENATOR DORSEY gives a vivid idea of real estate speculation in certain cities of the West thus: "In Kansas City," said he, "they have cut up into town lots an area capable of holding 3,000,000 people, and the property is selling on the basis of that many inhabitants. You can get land cheaper along Broadway than on the principal streets in Kansas City, Wichita, Omaha, Springfield, Mo., and Minneapolis are in much the same fix, and there must be a reaction. When the drop does come though, it won't affect the legitimate trade of the country, as some financiers seem to think. It is true that heavy real estate declines precipitated the panics of 1837 and 1857, but the only similarity between the conditions then and now is the figure of 7 at the close of all these years."

PERHAPS there is not a man in the Republican party who will permit himself to be swayed, to a less extent, by partisan political purposes than Daniel Rhoads. We could, if necessary, give instances of this. But our purpose is only to have these facts prove that he is the man for judge. The requirements of law and conscientious performance of duty will control him in whatever he will do.

WE heard a Democrat say this week that no man had ever been elected in this county who had antagonized the liquor interest. He thought that while this was so it should not be, and would like to see Mr. Rhoads elected as a rebuke to this dominating influence in the democratic party. There are many who think the same. Gentlemen, make your influence felt at the polls. We believe you will.

CHAIRMAN SANDERS, of the Democratic State Committee, is trying to repudiate the terms of the partnership with the Personal Liberty League, but the League partners hold him to his bargain. Democrats in every part of the State are repudiating the alliance. For all good uses they are of the opinion there is about as much Personal Liberty as is needed.

DO NOT believe stories regarding candidates that may be told on the eve of election. You have already determined how you will vote. Do not permit anything to change your determination.

PROTECT your boys by voting to make our county court a temperance body. A vote for Daniel Rhoads will be a protest against bargains in the interest of the whiskey element.

The Next National Conventions.

The Republican National Committee has been called to meet at Washington, December 8, for the purpose of fixing the time and place for holding the next National Convention. The Pittsburg Commercial Gazette says there will be several places bidding for the honor, among them Philadelphia, Saratoga, Chicago and St. Louis. The points that enter into the choice of a meeting place are easy accessibility and ample hall and hotel accommodations. So far as geographical position is concerned, Chicago or St. Louis would be preferable to any point east of the Alleghenies, and in either of these cities the hotel and hall accommodations are sufficient. The chief objection to them is the discomfort arising from the heat and dust which are usually prevalent about the last week in June and the early part of July.

There is some disposition manifested to have the next convention held in New York, mainly because of the effect that such a gathering is supposed to exert in determining the subsequent election. Since New York is regarded as the pivotal State, it will be desirable, of course, to do everything that can be done to strengthen the party. There is unwonted harmony among the party leaders at present, and should a substantial victory be achieved in the State next Tuesday, that would furnish an additional argument in favor of holding the convention either in New York city or at Saratoga.

The Republicans of St. Louis are already moving in the matter of making an effort to secure the selection of that city as the place. It is claimed that the best hall in the United States for convention purposes is in that city, and there can be no objection on the score of hotel accommodation or railway facilities. An additional reason urged in favor of St. Louis is that the Republican party has held but one National convention on soil where slavery once prevailed (that in Baltimore, in 1864, when Mr. Lincoln was renominated,) and that it would be eminently proper, after a lapse of twenty-four years, to give another of the "old slave States" a chance. There will be reason enough, no doubt, so far as the friends of the competing cities are concerned, but just how they will strike the majority of the National Committee is another matter.

The Democrats, even in advance of the meeting of the committee, are discussing the advisability of holding their next convention in Washington. It would be very convenient for the supporters of Mr. Cleveland, especially that large portion of them who are snugly fixed in official positions, and it might be a very good thing for the President himself to be within easy-calling distance in case of emergency. Being about the only available candidate his nomination is reasonably certain, but he might as well have it with the least outlay in time, trouble and expense.

THE Hotel and Saloon Keepers' Journal says that the "business interests of the saloon keepers are at stake and they should cast their ballots in favor of the party that places itself on record to protect those interests." The Watchman has denied that there is any alliance between the Personal Liberty League and the Democratic party. If so, why does the recognized organ of the Whiskey and Personal Liberty League advice its readers to vote for the Democratic party. In view of this, can any Christian man, or any man who favors the best interests of the country, vote with Democracy?

IT is well to bear in mind the fact that there are not a few honest and law-abiding Germans who have no sympathy with the liquor interest and who are content with the first day of the week as it is. They are not likely to give up their good habit of sustaining the Republican party while it conninues to be on the side of law, order and rational liberty.

ONLY a week will elapse until election day. It should be a week of earnest, active work on the part of every Republican in Centre county. In such battles as a political campaign earnest work is the only thing that will win. From now until the polls close on Tuesday, November 8, let not a moment be lost.

Do not vote for a man who is running for office the third time. It is in opposition to the principles of a Republic; besides it looks as if the candidate was a dictator in the party with which he is connected. Vote for Henderson and Decker. With them in office the finances will be safe.

REPUBLICAN success depends on individual exertion. Do your duty and see that your neighbors do their's.

A Great Opportunity.

On Tuesday of next week the people of this county will have an opportunity to accomplish a more exalted work than they have ever attempted.

This county has for years been under the thumb of a few persons who constitute the Court House ring. They have dictated all the nominations made by the Democratic party. The masses of that party have struggled and protested against it, but somehow the ring always came out on top. The people have opportunity.

To crush this ring. Will they do it?

Every department of the county affairs, has suffered the effects of having in the offices men who are either corrupt themselves or who are under the influence of corrupt agencies. Hence, abuses of an enormous character have crept into the management of these departments which it is absolutely necessary to eradicate. This can be done by voting for—

Daniel Rhoads, for Associate judge;
Cyrus Gross, for treasurer;
Robert Cooke, Jr., for sheriff;
J. C. Henderson and John D. Decker for commissioners;
Titus M. Gramley, for register;
John F. Harter, for recorder;
S. T. Gray and Andrew Gregg for auditors.

Let those names be your watchword when you go to the polls. Examine them carefully. Every name is one to be proud of, and means a great deal to you. As surely as those men are elected there will be an improvement in the administration of affairs in this county.

You have a chance to do yet more We may well shudder at the thought of a man who has made pledges to the whiskey ring being elevated to be associate judge. Throughout the State the whiskey ring is hand in hand with the Personal Liberty League, the purpose of which is to do away with Christian Sabbath. Of course, an associate judge cannot effect any such objects as that, but can have influence in increasing the flow of liquor and thus increasing crime.

The Republican nominee is known to be a high toned Christian man who has at all times and under every possible circumstance given his word and influence in favor of such agencies as tend towards decreasing crime and, of course, maintaining the Sabbath, which has always, during all time, been kept sacred It is enough for us when we know that the Anarchists are a unit in favor of abolishing the Sabbath to shrink from any one who dares to lay violent hands upon it. But, this year, the Democrats, to wrest victory from defeat, have made an unholy alliance with the Whiskey and Personal Liberty League, and doubtless the whiskey men of Bellefonte have been assessed for contributions to it.

Daniel Rhoads is not only a Christian man, but he is also, in its fullest sense, a temperance man. He has refused to make pledges to anyone, but will be governed by the law's demands and his convictions of right. Any fair minded man can trust one who they know to be upright and conscientious, and who refuses to make pledges.

Mr. Rhoads' record as a Republican is clean and straight. We have never heard it questioned. His career as a citizen is such as can be emulated by others. He is public-spirited. He is charitable. He was always magnanimous and fair in his business relations. We have not heard any objection of any kind made to him, and when these other considerations are also put in the balance we should think that the vote for him would be almost unanimous.

It is not necessary for us to repeat here that the associate judgeship should not be regarded as a political office. Anything that relates to the judiciary should be entirely separated from politics. Hence anyone can vote for a good man for associate judge without the voter's political fealty being called in question This affords a grand opportunity for Democrats to vote for Daniel Rhoads and for right.

But be careful. The enemy, though it seems small and insignificant this year, will be sly. Every deceitful pretext will be put forward to keep independent men in the party line. They may strive, by trading, or otherwise, to save some portion of the ticket. We do not advise voters to trade. Indeed, we warn them against it. But we do say vote, in every instance, for the best men, whose names are given in a previous part of this article.

SENATOR FRYE, since his return from abroad is a firmer protectionist than ever. He is clear, also, what he would do with the surplus. He would give $10,000,000 a year in subsidies to American ships; $10,000,000 more to educating people who are now not getting an education, and he would put 500,000 men at work digging the Nicaragua Canal.

GOING TO SCHOOL.

I see the little children creeping, creeping
Up the long hill-side to the village school,
With slow, reluctant feet, and almost weeping
To end glad summer with the sterner rule
Of tasks and hours, and waste October weather
Pent up in irksome study altogether

I see little children running, running
When school is over to resume their fun,
Or in the late sweet warmth of daylight sunning
Their little discontents away, each one.
"How nice to be grown up," so they are saying,
"And not to study, but be always playing!"

Ah, foolish little children! if you knew it,
Grown folks must study just as children do—
Must punctual be at school, or else they rue it.
And learn a harder lesson yet than you.
Early they set to work and toil all day;
The school let's out too late for any play.

Their school-room is the world, and Life the master—
A stern, harsh master he, and hard to please.
Some of the brighter children study faster
Than can the others who are dull, and these,
When they've recited, if they stand the test,
The master suffers to go home and rest.

But all must learn a lesson soon or later,
And all must answer at the great review;
Until at length the last discouraged waiter
Has done his task and read the lesson through,
And with his swollen eyes and weary head
At last is told he may hie home to bed.

So, little children, when you feel like crying
That you are forced to learn to read and write,
Think of the many harder lessons lying
In the dim future which you deem so bright.
Grown folks must study, even against their will;
Be very glad that you are children still.

DIFFERENCES.

BY CHARLES MACKAY.

The King can drink the best of wine,
So can I;
And has enough when he would dine,
So have I;
And cannot order rain or shine,
Nor can I;
Then where's the difference—let me see—
Betwixt my lord the King and me?

Do trusty friends surround his throne
Night and day?
Or make his interest their own?
No, not they.
Mine love me for myself alone—
Bless'd be they.
And that's one difference which I see
Betwixt the lord the King and me.

Do knaves around me lie and wait
To deceive?
Or fawn and flatter when they hate,
And would grieve?
Or cruel pomps oppress my state
By my leave?
No, heaven be thanked! and here you see
More difference twixt the King and me.

He has his fools, with jest and quips,
When he'd play;
He has his armies and his ships—
Great are they;
But not a child to kiss his lips—
Well-a-day!

And that's a difference sad to see
Betwixt my lord the King and me!

I wear a cap and he the crown
What of that?

I sleep on straw and he on down—
What of that?

And he's the King and I'm the Clown—
What of that?

Happy I and wretched he,
Perhaps the King would change with me.

Our Story Teller.

HER FORGERY.

"Two hundred dollars!" screamed John Chandos. "And what in the world do you want of all that money?" scowling fiercely at his wife.

"I want it to pay the doctor's bill for Bertie," she said, her cheeks flushing. "You know, you said I might bring him down here for his health. The bill must be paid," firmly.

"Oh, it must, eh? Well, I didn't marry your brother, and I say I shan't pay it," and he brought his fist down on the table with a bang that set the glasses ringing.

"But John," she stammered, "when I married you" —

"Now, don't begin that again," he put in testily. "I say I won't pay the bill," and, to close the conversation, he got up abruptly and left the room.

Poor Mrs. Chandos! She had married a rich man, not because she loved him but because she then could provide for her sick brother. Now that it was all over, John Chandos refused to stand by his promise, and she was as helpless financially, as before she married him. Better for her to have married Leigh Thornton, the man she loved. She walked up and down the room until she had worked herself up into great excitement over the bill that must be paid. Passing back and forth in front of her husband's desk she looked at it longingly, and once she paused and drew out his check book and opened it. He had not spared himself in expenditures but not a cent for her! That terrible bill hung over her like a sword.

Before she quite knew what she was doing she had forged a check in her husband's name for $200.

As her only friend in town that she could trust was Leigh Thornton, she sent it to him and in a few hours had the satisfaction of paying off Bertie's troublesome bills. Mr. Chandos happened into the bank that morning and pronounced the check a forgery. An hour later Leigh Thornton was arrested much to the delight of Mr. Chandos, who had always been jealous of the young man.

"Any objection to my writing a note?" asked Leigh of the man, as he found himself ushered into a bare cell, furnished with one chair, a table and a bed.

"Anything you call for and can pay for, you can have at present," answered the man.

The note being written was addressed to Mrs. Chandos.

Mr. Chandos, who had not been home since his discovery of the forgery had given him the chance to humiliate Leigh, had been hanging around the place for a couple of hours. He had missed Leigh's entrance, however, and just returned in time to hear that his victim had been safely caged. Indeed, the man he questioned was the one who was bearing Mr. Thornton's note to a box in the hall.

"Yes, gentleman's here," answered the fellow; "bin a writin' a billet dux already, as I'm jest a goin' to post 'im."

"Ah, indeed, most important!" answered Mr. Chandos, quite purple in the face with excitement. "Why, he may criminate himself in it; let me see."

The request was accompanied by a gleam of silver between the palms, and Mr. Chandos was reading the address of the letter.

"All right," he said, disguising his agitation; "it is to my wife, you see! Probably asking her to intercede for him. I'll take it to her." The man read the address, and handed it over without a misgiving.

"Well, this is the most impudent thing I ever heard of," sputtered Mr. Chandos as he opened the letter and read:

DEAR MRS. CHANDOS: Your husband will probably relate the event of this day to you, and I write to beg that you will say nothing. I have not divulged the name of the person who gave me the check. I can bear the consequence better than you can, and would bear more for your sake! Only be silent and believe me your friend. LEIGH.

It was a sultry day, and Mr. Chandos, a plethoric, elderly man, had been hurrying about in the sun ever since his discovery in the bank. The note, showing that the traitor had been in his own household, was a finishing stroke. He fell on the pavement insensible.

He was carried into a drug store near, and restoratives applied. He recovered consciousness after a while, and seemed very indignant at his own weakness.

He called for a carriage and got into it and was driven to the ferry and reached home in an excited state. He had destroyed the letter.

"I will see how far her hypocrisy will carry her!" he gasped as he ascended the stairs.

Eleanor Chandos was sitting alone in her room. She did not care to mingle with the gaiety in the parlor, for Bertie was worse, and her whole heart ached like some bruised thing to be with him and cheer him. She had made up her mind to beg of her husband to allow her to go there for this one night. When she looked up she uttered an exclamation—the man's face was so changed! The veins on his forehead stood out like cords, the eyes were bloodshot, the lips purple and his breath seemed labored.

"Why, John, you are sick!" she cried.

"Sick!" he muttered; "never mind! I have news for you. Your precious friend Leigh is in prison—for forgery!"

"On whom!" faltered Eleanor, growing sick and deathly pale.

"Oh me!"

That was enough for her clear, straight forward nature.

"It is a mistake," she said. "He cashed a check, but it was for me. I made it out. If you call that a forgery—a wife to take something from her husband—I am the forger!"

"Ha! you brazen it out well, you hussy!" cried the man, in passion. "I knew it before! I read one of his precious notes to you where he dares to beg your silence, and says he would bear much more for your sake! Dares to tell my wife that?"

And Mr. Chandos, grown giddy, sank into a chair and grasped for breath.

"Did Leigh believe that I would consent to that?" said Mrs. Chandos. "No, if you call it guilt, I shall bear it."

"But, what if I choose that he shall suffer?" cried her husband. "He will not clear himself, and I will not clear him. I shall prosecute him with all the power of the law."

"Then I shall declare the truth!" answered Mrs. Chandos, calmed by the terrible position of affairs.

"What! you will stand up and blazon your shame? A pretty story for the public! A wife who forges and takes her lover as an accomplice.

'I will tell the whole story, at any risk! cried Mrs. Chandos, with passionate fervor.

"If you do, we part! I swear it!" cried her husband.

"So be it! Perhaps that is better, and as Bertie is very ill I wish to go to him to-night," answered his wife. "I shall return in the morning."

It was wonderful what courage the woman had taken from the very peril of the hour. She dared not look into the future or strive to unravel the tangled web of destiny. She only dared to face the present duty, murmuring:

Stop not at life's long sorrow
See how small each moment's pain!

And she sat down calmly by the bed of the sick boy, and strove to win his thoughts from his suffering with an angelic patience that only belongs to woman. She little knew how near one was whose touch unloosens many a tangled skein and solves many a vexed problem in life.

Before sunrise a messenger came for her and she was soon sitting by another bed, whose occupant spoke no word and made no sign. The stroke had fallen once more, and this time John Stuart Chandos did not rally, but passed out through those shadowy portals that await all living.

Cider in Various Forms.

"Sweet cider? Yes, sir. Here you are."

A New York tourist was spending a day in a primitive New Jersey hamlet, and inquired at the village inn for a glass of that famous Jersey beverage.

"That's good. Just made, wasn't it?"

"Lemme see. John, when was this cider made?" John replied from the lower end of the room that it was made a little over two years ago.

"Guess you're right, John," returned the innkeeper. "You ought to know as you put it in yourself."

"How did you manage to keep it sweet so long?"

"Easy enough, I put into a barrel full of sweet cider a quart of milk, about half a pint of mustard seed—the black seed—and six eggs. Mix them all up together and pour them in the barrel. Cider will keep sweet that way for half a dozen years. I think it gets better and sweeter the longer you keep it. I have another kind of cider you may want to taste."

The tourist did want to taste it and the innkeeper fished out from a gloomy and cob-webby depths of a sub-counter closet, a quart bottle which bore such marks of age as would have made the mouth of an epicurean wine-bibber water with anticipated delight. The cork came out with a mighty pop, and a fine spray filled the air with mist and the aromatic fragrance of champagne.

"Try a glass of that," said the innkeeper, as he filled two glasses with the sparkling fluid. The tourist needed no urging.

"Why, that doesn't taste like cider, neither is it champagne, exactly. What do you call it?"

"Cider."

"How did you make it?"

"I bottled it three days ago. It was fresh, sweet, strained cider then. I put in each bottle a couple of raisins and a small lump of rock candy, and if you can find any champagne that costs less than ten cents a bottle that will beat that I will buy a thousand cases of it."

"Should think it could be sold in some country places for champagne?"

"I have sold a good many hundred bottles of it."

"In what country town?" asked the tourist.

"In New York City."

A Land of Beauty.

Messrs. J. P. McCann, of New York, and Beever, of Williamsport, two railroad ticket agents of the through routes to the Pacific, told the writer that the increased emigration to Los Angeles, California, was so heavy that they had to put on the through route extra passenger trains to take all the passengers bound for that delightful country.

Scientists say that there is only one other country in the whole world similar to that of Los Angeles county, and that is located in the northwestern part of Italy and the southeastern part of France, a narrow strip of land south of the mountains of Maritime Alps, and northwest of the Mediterranean sea. It is noted for its delightful and salubrious climate and serenity of its atmosphere, which is similar to that of Los Angeles county. The opulent and higher class of citizens of all parts of Europe had been and are migrating to that particular location which is very thickly settled. However, Nice, one of their beautiful cities, was overthrown by an earthquake the 11th of last March. The inducement of the large emigration into Los Angeles county, California, is not alone the genial and salubrious climate and the serenity of its atmosphere, but there is no winter, no thunder storm, no hail, no oppressive heat, no sunstroke there—which induces many invalids to emigrate there from all parts of the United States for permanent residence and their health.

This section is also noted as the best fruit country in the world.

Proud of His Patch.

A poor boy was attending school one day with a large patch on one knee of his trowsers. One of his schoolmates made fun of him for this, and called him "Old Patch." "Why don't you fight him?" cried one of the boys; "I'd give it to him if he called me so." "Oh," said the boy, "you don't suppose I'm ashamed of my patch, do you? For my part I'm thankful for a good mother to keep me out of rags. I'm proud of my patch for her sake." This was noble. That boy had the courage that would make him successful in the struggles of life. We must have courage in our struggles if we hope to come out right.

Mount Tacoma.

American Magazine for November.

There is a certain unequaled majesty in the lofty ranges of the Rocky Mountains of Colorado. In Alaska are mountain views of matchless beauty. Shasta, Hood, Adams, St. Helens and Baker are stately peaks which excite the admiration of every beholder, but this view of Tacoma is entirely unique and has a savage grandeur all its own. For many minutes we gaze in amazement upon the combined scene ere we care to examine it in detail. We stand upon the brink of a cliff of naked rock, bare of vegetation, grim and stern, extending down almost perpendicularly, 2,500 feet. The opposite wall sloped steeply up, covered with a dense growth of forest trees. In the bottom of the gorge swiftly flow the turbid waters of the North fork of Puyallup River. The stream is fifty feet in width, but in that abysmal depth it looks to be but a purling brook. Mountain eagles dart through the air to and from their nests upon the crags. Looking toward tue West the canon stretches away for miles, down which the river winds its way, glinting in the sunlight like a little stream of molten silver. Turning and looking to the East, you see that the canon abruptly terminates two miles away, where sits the mighty mass of Mount Tacoma. From the dome of the mountain extend two great arms or ridges of basaltic rock capped with sharp peaks. Down their sides run vertical columns forming numerous gorges which are filled with snow and ice. From these gorges run many streams, little mountain torrents up there, but as they rush down, rivulet unites with rivulet and stream mingles with stream, until three foaming cascades plunge into a great basin. Out of this basis flows a larger, which soon leaps into a narrow gorge or rock and disappears, but the breeze bears to our ears in swelling notes the roar of its numerous cataracts—this is Lost River.

Gone Out from the World.

Hartford Courant.

In consideration of her gift to the university the Pope has sent Miss Caldwell the "Golden Rose," an honor she has shared with one other American lady, Miss Emily Harper, of Baltimore. Her good looks and devotion to society, however, have not prevented the prediction that she will follow the example of her cousins, the Misses McLatish, the belles and beauties of Baltimore, and end her career behind the grating of a cloister. The eldest of this brilliant trio passed the winter of 1883 in the abandon of gayety that only Southern women know. Her comings and her goings were chronicled as of a queen.

I recall her one night as she descended the steps of the great hall where the most brilliant society in the South held its assemblage; people flocked to the doors and windows, and the ballroom was deserted to catch a glimpse of that stately and exquisite form, and that divinely lovely face. One night, after a ball, that winter, she bade her coachman drive her to a convent just without the city's walls. There had been no farewell to the world, no parting with her importunate lovers. In all her gloss of satin and glimmer of pearls she went away, and from that day to this not a word has reached them of the brilliant life that is hidden under the black veil of a nun. The second and third sisters followed her example, both taking the same last dramatic look on life.

A Friendly Gander.

The following story is given as true by an exchange. We will not vouch for it:

"A certain man owned a blind horse. A flock of geese occupied the pasture jointly with him. A gander, seeing the difficulty the horse had to get around, attached himself to the horse, leaving his fellows for that purpose. All day long the gander could be seen going in front of the horse, giving signs of his presence by a constant cackle; the horse following the sound. The gander led the horse to the best pasture and to water. At night the gander accompanied the horse to the stall, sat under the trough, and the horse would occasionally bite off a mouthful of corn and drop it on the ground for his feathered friend; and thus they would share each other's meals. Finally, one Sunday, the old horse died. The gander seemed utterly lost, wandered around disconsolately, refusing food; and at the end of a week he, too, died, although his life had just begun, for a goose will live many years."

The Heaviest Man in the World.

The British Medical Journal gives the following interesting particulars of the height, weight and dimensions of Thomas Longley, of Dover, who is said to be the heaviest British subject in the world. Mr. Longley, who is a respectable and intelligent publican, was born (of parents not above the normal size) in 1848. As a baby he was not considered large. His present weight is 560 pounds; height, 6 feet and ¾ inches; measurement of the waist, 80 inches; size of leg, 25 inches. He finds considerable difficulty in walking, and he does not trust himself in a carriage for fear of breaking the springs. He is said to be very temperate, both in eating and drinking, and he has never suffered from any illness of a serious nature.

The Professional Horse Trainer.

A trainer has to look after the health, food and condition of a horse. He must be a first rate judge of a horse and must know a good deal about his diseases so as to doctor him. Of course he doesn't have to be a veterinary surgeon, although the best trainers have a practical knowledge about the troubles of a horse and the best means to cure them that are just as good as a professional horse doctor's.

There is one thing at the beginning that should be stated to correct a general impression. The trainer has nothing to do with "breaking" a horse. When a colt is brought to a trainer it is understood that the horse is ready for practical hard work, and it is then the trainer's business to learn the peculiarities of the animal and develop him for racing. That should be borne in mind throughout; the trainer trains for the race, nothing else. In general the work of different trainers is the same. Some trainers are better than others, of course, and occasionally some pretty poor sticks get into the business. I could name a few of the latter, but it would not look well for me to do so Where trainers differ from each other is not so much in method, for we all base our methods upon common knowledge among horsemen about the nature and needs of the animal, but in judgment. It is impossible to say how this makes vital differences in the result of training, but it may be inferred when I tell you the general methods I pursue. Then you can see that there are a hundred and one little points wherein judgment may differ as to proper treatment, and each point is all important in itself. The training of a horse begins about three months before the racing season and keeps up to the end of it. They generally start in with it about the 1st of March. Different horses need different work, according as they are young or old, nervous or heavy, and the work has to be varied somewhat according to the actual condition of the horse. Some horses need strong work, some light work. Young horses need more work than old ones. But no horse can race with any chance to win without training.

THE REUNION ENDED.

NEXT MEETING ARRANGED FOR—MONUMENT MONEY—CAMP FIRE, ETC.

The first item of business transacted by the Association of the 148th regiment on Friday afternoon was to fix upon Gettysburg for the place of reunion next year. The time was not fixed.

Then the Memorial committee reported, through its chairman. R. H. Forster was made the President and Col. D. S. Keller the secretary of the committee. A committee of three members from each company is to be selected to procure money for the monuments at Gettysburg. The members of the companies met at once and chose such committees. Each company will raise $200, which, with the legislative appropriation, will amount to about $5000. Company G, reported $185.50 raised then and there. Of course, the companies may collect as much more as they desire and Governor Beaver promised, on behalf of the field and staff, that they will give as much as the highest amount collected by anyone company.

The concluding hour of the afternoon was devoted to social intercourse.

THE CAMP-FIRE.

Col. D. S. Keller was selected to preside at the camp fire on Friday evening. He said that a programme had been prepared only for the purpose of preventing the interest from flagging. The more it could be deviated from the better.

The choir of the evening, composed of Messrs. Schaeffer, Lukenbach, Weaver and Stover, with Miss Weaver at the organ, rendered a selection.

Comrade Gemmell made a brief prayer and then the chairman told the choir to give some real camp-fire music. It was "Soft be thy slumber; sweet be thy sleep."

Wm. Harpster recited a parody on "Sheridan's Ride." This was the first log on the fire and it was a humorous one. People generally wanted it to blaze somewhat longer, but it refused to do so.

Col. R. H. Forster was called on to contribute a log and, in doing so, asked Dr. Jacobs to give the sequel of a story told by Comrade Holahan in the morning. Comrade Joseph Fox, in turn, insisted that Comrade Holahan perform that duty. He complied with alacrity. It was a story relating some of the humors of the war.

Major Forster asked that Capt. Curtin be invited to speak. The Captain was not a member of the 148th, but he belonged to a regiment which gave the 148th its colonel. He spoke of the delight which it afforded old soldiers to engage in such reunions. He reverted to the custom so often indulged in by some people of making light of such gatherings. Such people have no right to citizenship in a country that is worth saving. More than 600 soldiers die annually in Pennsylvania from the effects of wounds received in the service. The soldiers will not live long, and their pathway in this life should be made pleasant. As a soldier said to Thomas Stewart, of Philadelphia—"Give me ten cents now; don't wait until you can strew flowers on my grave."

Major Marlin, a former captain of company I, spoke very briefly. "The Union forever; hurrah, boys, hurrah!" was sang by the choir.

Col. Keller told, with good effect, the experience of Comrade Musser, of Milesburg, the first time he was on guard. Then he told Comrade Harpster to repeat his song of Thursday evening, "We have drank from the same canteen." The comrade did so. He is always a success in songs or recitations.

Comrade Gemmill, of Co. D, said that members of the same regiment naturally think more of one another than of others, and it is right that they do. He considered that in this reunion the members of the 148th had been very moderate in their praise of it. He followed with other remarks of a similar nature which were all exceedingly entertaining.

The choir rendered a song composed in honor of General Hancock. The music was sweet.

Comrade R. R. Lyle, of Company I, praised that company as the best in the regiment. The members always told the truth and never took anything which they could not carry away. His narrative was about fitting on his uniform the first time. Of course, it did not fit very well. Comrade Swineford hoped that all would meet next year at Gettysburg. Aaron Williams, a six-months cavalryman, was too modest to say much. Comrade Fortney gave his experience in preparing the programme. He had been in this town twenty years and had enjoyed the past twenty-four hours as much as any part of that long period.

The boys left their schools, pleasant employments and best girls and went off to war. When they reached the front they did not feel bad—not so much as the folks at home. There was but little responsibility for the private soldiers. They had only to obey orders and put in their time as best they could. Hancock is said to have stated that if he ever got near Richmond he would have the 148th steal the city, as they had learned to steal everything. He extoled the government that was saved at such sacrifice and said it would give him pleasure to see all the Anarchists hung. Comrade Hamilton added his testimony to the belief that the 148th was worthy of all the praise bestowed on it.

Comrade Harpster gave "The Awkward Squad," a humorous song which was well received.

The doxology was sang and Comrade Gemmill pronounced the benediction. After Col. Keller had announced that a resolution was adopted at the afternoon session thanking the people of Bellefonte for hospitality, Gregg Post for its courtesy and the choir for music, the reunion of 1887 became a fact of history.

At the High School.

The rhetorical exercises were begun on Friday afternoon, with a song entitled. "Old Folks at Home," by Fannie Twitmire, Jennie Lukenbach, Prof. Johnstonbaugh and Charlie Noll. Bridgie Curry's essay was on a "dear" subject as she read of "The Reindeer." Chas. T. Noll declaimed on "The Owl Critic," in his usual excellent style. "Catharina" was the title of a recitation by Fannie Twitmire. Andy J. Cruse, in a declamation told about the man who got "The wrong Ashes" at the crematory. Emma Yerger's recitation was entitled "The Faithful Dog." Longefellow and Whittier" was the subject of Charles Garner's declamation. May Taylor had the time-honored subject, "Glaciers," for an essay. Stella Nolan recited the "Memories of Geo. B. McClellan" and James Dolan, in a declamation, told all about the "Nomination." A vocal duet by Fannie Twitmire and Jennie Lukenbach was entitled "Roses of the Garden" and was rendered in excellent style. Emma Montgomery's recitation was on a new and good subject, "Guard Thine Actions," "Friendship" was the theme of a declamation, by John Morgan, and then, in an essay, Elsie Herkimer told all "How to Write," something they should certainly know. Geo. Graham had a declamation, the title of which we failed to learn. May Woodring had an essay on "Tea" which was very palatable. Jennie C. Powers, in a recitation, had "Roses to Sell," but did not find many buyers in the High School. Jennie Fauble came forward with an essay on that important theme, "How to Write Letters." The next to mount the platform was Harry Jenkins, who, having made his bow, proceeded to declaim on, "True Novelity." Bella Barnhart had for the subject of her essay "Books," and we presume gave the yellow backed novel a severe blow. "Abraham Lincoln and the Poor Woman" was Jennie Crittenden's recitation and she got it off very well. The afternoon's exercises concluded with a song entitled "Chiming Bells," in which the following persons were concerned: Fannie Twitmire, Jennie Lukenbach, Prof. Johnstonbaugh, Charlie Noll and Harry Jenkins. We wish to compliment the singers on the really artistic way in which they rendered the different selections. SOCKERY.

A Bear in Milesburg.

The appearance of a bona fide bear on the principal street of our town, on Monday evening, of last week, caused general consternation and sent promenaders, of whom there were quite a number enjoying an evening stroll, helter skelter in search of shelter. Sir Bruin entered the town from the north through the iron bridge, wended his way down through the diamond, running against Mr. A. T. Boggs' picket fence and breaking it. Mr. Boggs' dog scenting the animal, they gave it a lively chase, but the animal stole away as mysteriously as it appeared.

The Woman's Relief Corp's of this place, is now holding a festival in the G. A. R. hall.

Mr. Forrest Deam, who has been for several weeks past confined to the house with neuralgia of the face, is recovering.

Mr. Jacob Smith, the miller at Green's mill, has the largest hogs in the town.

Mr. A. T. Beggs' new town hall is now roofed and weather boarded.

Mr. C. K. Essington is again able to be about.

A Word to Merchants.

We have sometimes heard the merchants of Bellefonte complain because the citizens of the town send to the city for goods instead of purchasing at home. We guess they are right in this complaint and criticism. But do they not sometimes commit a mistake of the same character? It seems to us they do. A day or two ago a man came to town and offered to collect some of their claims of a doubtful character. The man was engaged by several merchants and he collected some money. We are informed that he left suddenly, taking a considerable sum of money with him—about $10 apiece from each merchant who gave him their confidence. Permit us to inform these merchants that there are in this town gentlemen who make collecting their business, and they should be employed. The fellow's name, we believe, is McAllister. Business men, in other towns have been "taken in" the same way. People should be on the watch for him.

A Minnesota father is said to have assisted his son in eloping.

Handsome specimens of needlework done on a sewing machine may be seen in the windows of some book stores.

CAPTAIN MORAN'S STORY.

Captain Moran, of the steamer Superior, says: "When about six miles east northeast of Manitowoc the cook, who had been keeping a keen look-out, called me on deck with the information that a raft could be seen with a man on it. As I went on deck I coul l plainly see the man waving his hand to us. He was standing upright on the raft which was about half a mile between us and the shore, and the sea was washing over the poor fellow. He must have thought it cruel of us to pass by and leave him there to suffer. Ten minutes later we sighted another raft, also about half a mile in sight of us. It was much smaller, apparently not more than 4 by 8 feet, and looked like a piece of bulwark. On it was lying a man who although still alive, probably did not discern us, as he was too far gone We could see him dip his head as his frail little float was tossed about in the sea, as though he was about dead.

"We saw a yawl with three men and one woman in it a little farther south. There may, however, have been more of them lying down in the boat, the three we saw being on the seats. One of the men was standing up holding his oar, with his coat swinging to attract attention. Their hearts must have been gladdened in their expectation of help from us. How inhuman they must have thought us when we passed them by, and within a mile too, without even turning our vessel towards them, but with our teamer's gear disabled as it was we could not steer our vessel, and there was nothing for us do but hope that some of the vessels coming up the lake astern of us might discern them and pick them up."

Getting Ready for the Gallows.

HAZLETON, October 30.—George Neff, the Hilltown murderer, who has been roaming about the country for six weeks, was captured in his old haunts in the coal regions at Drifton yesterday morning. E A. Oberrender, private secretary of Eckley B. Coxe, sent the following telegram from Drifton to District Attorney H. B. Rastburn: "Have Neff, the murderer, under arrest. What shall I do with him? I claim reward." A reward of $500 was offered for the capture of Neff.

Officer Pollock took the necessary papers and left here this evening, and expects to return with the murderer this Monday. Neff shot John Gonsaert, a native of Germany, at Blooming glen September 7. The cause of the shooting was supposed to be jealousy. After the shooting he made the remark that he was going to Doylestown to give himself up to the authorities, but no tidings were received of him until yesterday.

Neff made a full confession to his captors, and argued as a defense that Gunsaert was criminally intimate with his wife. Since the murder Neff has traveled from Hilltown to Terre Haute, Ind., stopping at Pittsburgh, Harrisburg and Sunbury. He returned here for the purpose of collecting $23 due him from the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

Fate of a Vessel on the Lake.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 30.—The steamship Superior, arriving here last night, brought first news of the total wreck of a large passenger propeller off Manitowoc, Wis. The wreck is that of the large steam propeller Vernon of the Northern Michigan Line, and this is established almost beyond a doubt. The propeller was due here yesterday, and from the description of the fragments seen by the crew of the Superior her owners here consider her identity fully established.

She had on board a crew of twenty-two men and several passengers, the exact number not being known, and it is supposed that all hands perished.

Captain Moran, of the Superior, saw three or four rafts with men clinging to them, and also a small boat containing a w man and three men.

Although he made an effort to rescue them, the high sea prevented the rendering of any assistance, the Superior being herself disabled and requiring the crew's best efforts.

Oil Tank Explosion.

ALTOONA, October 31.—Several days ago the Pennsylvania Railroad Company had shipped to this city says the Times ten oil tanks from Pittsburgh, to be used in carrying water, and two of them were used last night for the first time, engine 33 hauling them out with the regular tank train on the Branch Road to Baker's water trough, at midnight.

The tanks had not been cleaned, as had been the case with the others, and after the filling Brakeman Charles M. Davis went along the top to the small lid found on every tank to note if all the water was in that it would hold. He used a torch to see, and as the light covered the lid a terrific explosion occurred, tearing the tank open across the top and knocking Davis off the bar. His face was horribly burned and hardly a hair is left on his head. It was all singed off.

The Twelfth Juror Interviewed.

ST. PAUL, Minn., October 31.—H. T. Sanford, one of the jurors who convicted the Chicago anarchists, has been in St. Paul for about four months, and is employed in the auditor's office of the Minnesota and Northwestern railway. Mr. Sanford was the twelfth and last juror selected to try the case, and his selection was made one of the points of error by which the condemned men sought to secure a reversal of judgment by the Illinois supreme court. When Adams, the eleventh juror, was chosen, the defense had forty-three peremptory challenges remaining, which were exhausted before the selection of the twelfth juror was made. Sanford was accepted by the state and challenged for cause by the defense, but Judge Gary overruled the challenge and the defense was obliged to accept him.

Mr. Sanford was seen and spoke as follows regarding the case: "The objection made to me by the defense was because I was prejudiced, although the stenographic report of my examination showed that I said under oath, that I could fairly and impartially listen to the testimony and bring in a verdict in accordance with the facts in the case. My opinion had been formed in rumor in newspaper comments, and was prejudiced against anarchism and communism, as every law-abiding citizen should be. Judge Gary thought I would make an impartial juror. The attorneys fer the state accepted me, and the defense were forced to do so."

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

The Boy with a Slung Shot.

Bellefonte is not the only town where the small boy is parading the streets armed with a slung shot, terrorizing all whom he encounters. The Altoona Tribune finds him in that city and remarks that the American boy is irrepressible. There is more life, activity and thoughtless mischief in him to the square inch than in any other thing that lives To say that he is naturally cruel and depraved is all bosh. He is full to overflowing of animal spirits and he can't keep still. Much mischief he does, but it is largely the result of thoughtlessness. He never wants to destroy property or do injury to human life or limb, and when he does either, as he too often does, he is properly sorry. Nevertheless, while this much may fairly be said on his behalf it must be admitted that he will bear watching and there are times when he needs to feel the strong arm of authority restraining his thoughtlessness and directing his surplus energies into new and rather less harmful channels.

Just now there is a mania among the boys from 6 to 16 to own and manipulate the dangerous slung-shot. About every other boy one meets is armed with one of these formidable weapons. Birds, cats and dogs are the chief objects of attack, but many window lights have already been shattered and some narrow escapes have been made from serious injury or possible death.

Now we think the time has come when the slung shots should be put away. Life, probably, is as sweet to a bird as it is to a boy. It is a cowardly bit of sport to maim a dog or a cat, and no manly boy who stops a moment to think will be guilty of such cruel conduct. Besides, it is not worth while to run the risk of committing murder for the sake of a very questionable bit of sport. We hope the boys will agree with us that the slung shot has been here long enough, and that it must be laid aside.

But if the boys fail to see the matter in this light and persist in endangering human life and injuring property, then parents, policemen and constables should take the matter in hand at once. Parents who have control of their children's movements, and there are still some of that sort in existence, can do much to abate the nuisance by exercising their authority in that direction. The mayor should instruct policemen to confiscate all the slung shots they can lay their hands on and constables should do this of their own accord since there is no one who has authority to instruct them.

—We are sorry to hear that Wallace, the bright little son of Wilbur Reeder, Esq., was quite badly hurt on Monday night. Some one pushed him violently from the pavement and he fell, striking his head on some hard substance, cutting a gash above his eye and injuring the bone. We hope the wound will heal rapidly and that Wallace will soon be well again.

—Dr. H. K. Hoy is operating on a case such as has seldom, perhaps never before, been undertaken by a local practitioner. It is the removal of a cataract from the eye. The person afflicted with this disease was Mr. Bamford, father of Clell Bamford. The operation was successful and Mr. Bamford is recovering his eye sight.

"Eagle's" Notes from Stormstown.

STORMSTOWN, OCT., 31, 1887.

MR EDITOR: It appears to me very strange that I cannot get you to understand that A. J. Greist has already held office in Centre county for twelve years—six years auditor and six years commissioner—and is now asking the voters to give him another term. He say if he can be elected this time why he will be sure of it next time.

Last week, while out at Marsh Creek, I met a gentleman from the neighborhood of Howard who said that Robert Cooke, Jr., had been elected constable nine times in succession and in five or six different cases Mr. Cooke had paid claims for poor people that were about to be sold out, and waited on them until they were able to pay him. The above gentleman was a Democrat, but strong for Cooke.

Good old Daniel will run ahead of his ticket in this township with Cooke close up, and Mr. Griest will find his noble forty-four (the Democratic vote of the township) sadly in the minority.

And now the first thing one hears when he goes away from home is "Hello, Buzzard!"

Mr. William Meiss, of Patton township, lost a good farm horse one day last week, and if was not the botts that killed it, why it is the first horse that has died in this valley for 15 or 20 years that didn't die with Botts.

W. S. Gray, of this place, brought home several fine colts from the western part of the State.

William R. Way is building a fine farm house which will be ready to occupy some time in the near future.

The Democracy will please bear in mind that John Q. Miles' friends know what they are doing.

The writer of this had a talk with Big John on Saturday night.

Mr. Benner Wilson, who came from Montana lately, wears the regulation cow boy hat.

Both the potato and corn crops in this section are very good.

I think it is about time for the W. C. T. U. of this town to hold a couple of meetings in this township or the election will be over before they will get a whack at it, for they will please bear in mind that Half Moon township is to go Republican this time.

Did ever anyone of the readers of this paper hear Bob Gray (our live young merchant) tell his eel story? Mose Montgomery, of the First National Bank, should hear it by all means, as I think Mose would appreciate it.

I see the Bibles are still firing away with their old smooth bore.

Yours, &c.,
EAGLE.

Philipsburg Again.

Now the Reliance fire company have taken possession of the tower portion of the new public building. Will the Hope get a "poke in" in the new structure? We will see.

Mr. E. Kottman, the new photographer, who has come from Altoona recently and opened a gallery in Ducher's new building, on Pine and Second streets, has as fine as any if not the finest studio in Centre county.

We understand that James Moore will move his barber shop into the basement of Mrs. Nelson's building, on Front street, and that a butcher shop will be opened in the now barber shop.

The family of Mr. Simon Doyle has certainly been sorely afflicted for some time past. Only a few days ago they buried their little boy and now their little girl is lying sick with the same disease that took off the boy—diphtheria. His wife is also quite ill.

Who said we are not to have electric light in spite of the citizens saying "no" by their vote on Thursday last? About a dozen lights have already been put up. Mr. Kenyon, the gentlemanly lessee, is a man worthy of our people's confidence, and we hope many now will follow suit and have lights put up at once.

Editor Bair, of the Journal, was in Bellefonte Monday.

Everything in and about the St. Paul P. E. church has been freshened up and it now looks as bright as a new pin.

Kephart, of Madera, won the foot-race at the park the other day. Caton was the defeated man.

"Wonderland," wonderful to say, failed to show up at the opera house, the night it was billed to show here.

You never will be disappointed when you go to see "Sam'l of Posen."

As a personal, we might truthfully assert that Mr. Zack Woods, of Mt. Union, Huntingdon Co., spent Sabbath in our city. He is traveling as a commercial man and is very popular.

Is there no end to hucksters in Bald Eagle Valley? By the number that weekly visit Philipsburg, we would have to think, if not say it, no.

By the number of flittings on our streets, one would think the first of April was here.

SOME ONE.

Kate M. Flick vs. John T. Fowler. Fortney for plaintiff; Beaver, Gephart & Dale for defense.

—Governor Beaver wants every one in Pennsylvania to give thanks on the 24th inst. and tells them to do so in the following language: "The President of the United States, having designated by a public proclamation Thursday, the 24th day of November, as a day of general thanksgiving to be observed by the people of the United States, I do cordially recommend the people of this Commonwealth to assemble in their several places of worship on the day aforesaid to render hearty and united thanks to Almighty God for the goodness and mercy that have been vouchsafed by Him to us as a people during the past year."

—The huge nails on the soles of some of the boots worn by Italians render them very slippery and caused two of them, on Tuesday, to get a genuine tumble. Quite a large company of them were crossing on High street from Mr. Valentine's residence to the Centre County Bank, when the one in advance slipped on the stones and measured his length on their flat surface. The one just behind fell over him. Neither of them was hurt, so the fallen ones and their companions indulged in a hearty laugh over the ludicrous situation.

—Since writing the brief notice stating that the lads who celebrated All Hallow-e'en did not do anything meriting reproof we have heard of one very reprehensible act of which they were guilty. In some way they broke the large stone in front of Mr. Fearon Mann's property, which is used by people who enter or alight from their carriages at that spot. We are sorry the boys did such a thing as it involved a destruction of property amounting to about $10, and was nothing less than malicious mischief.

—This assertion, made in an exchange, is entirely too extravagant to tell before Christmas: "Last winter a man had what is known as a horrible cold, and a friend advised him to take a strong whiskey toddy and soak his feet in hot water before retiring. He carried out the advice to the letter and was having a delightful doze when his wife left him to go to bed. At 3 o'clock the next morning she awoke to find him dozing, while his feet were firmly held in the pail by not less than an inch of ice."

—Lovely new waltz song, just out, —"Won't you buy my pretty flowers" by H. P. DANKS, is at last published in fine style. This beautiful song is sung with great success by Miss Lillian and Jennie Calef, in "Little Muffets." At music stores or Copies mailed for the price, 50 cents, by the publisher:

The Soldier's Monument.

This paper has frequently said that Centre county should have a soldiers' monument. Ex-Gov. Curtin, in his address of welcome to the 148th Regiment, said the same thing. We believe that most persons will agree that this is so.

But it was demonstrated that it will not be practicable for the 148th regiment to undertake such a work now, because they will devote all their energies, and will require assistance from others, to place memorials on the battlefield of Gettysburg.

But, we ask, why should this work—this duty—depend on the veterans? We do not consider that it should. The work of erecting monuments to veterans more appropriately belongs to those of our citizens who had no personal part in the war, or the descendants of those who were participators. Of course, veterans need not be debarred from helping in such pleasant work, but to others it is more particularly a duty.

What is a monument for? It is a testimonial of love, admiration and gratitude. As citizens we owe the soldiers a debt of everlasting gratitude. They performed for us the greatest service that one person can perform for another. They saved for us our altars, our firesides, perhaps our sacred honor. They gave to us the greatest heritage that can be transmitted as an earthly possession—a country—united, free and independent. There is nothing we can do for them that will measure our debt of obligation. Hence, the conviction to us is unalterable that this monument should be the gift of those who were not themselves soldiers, and it is surpassingly strange that there should be any hesitation to provide a monument to the soldiers of Centre county which shall be more beautiful than any similar monument in the Keystone State.

The number of soldiers who went out from this place was very large. We, of course, believe that they fought more valliantly than did other soldiers. Certain it is that hundreds were mowed down by the cruel bullet of a foe and their bodies are mingling with the soil of the South. Centre county is not poor in material resources.

If we were asked to say what is necessary to provide a monument to veterans, we would feel inclined say—patriotism of the right kind and the money to give expression to our patriotism in a practical manner. The money is not lacking. There are a hundred citizens who could give a hundred dollars apiece for such a purpose. There are one hundred more who could give fifty apiece. Fifteen thousand dollars would, perhaps, erect a suitable monument, though even a larger sum could be raised for this purpose. Other communities have already erected monuments to their dead veterans. When members of such communities come to Bellefonte they naturally expect to see a handsome monument here dedicated to the memory of Centre county soldiers. They are surprised that such a work is not even yet begun. Let us not hesitate longer, but by putting both shoulders to the wheel and pulling altogether make the project move right along, and thus make amends for this neglected duty.

Everywhere the Same.

Wherever Gilmore's Magnetic Elixir is introduced it leads all other remedies for the cure of coughs, colds, hoarseness, bronchitis, and all affections of the throat and lungs. It will relieve the worst case of asthma in one minute. Regular physicians endorse it as a first class specific for the purposes for which it is prepared. Barnard Salisbury, of Humphrey Centre, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., writes:—"I have tried it in my family and find it splendid. We keep it constantly on hand and would not keep house without it." At this season of the year all persons are liable to a cold, which one or two small doses of Gilmore's Magnetic Elixir will relieve at once.

Virtue Properly Rewarded.

There was a man.

And he had a horse and wagon.

And he went about the streets selling strawberries.

And he yelled "Strawberries! Strawberries!" at the top of his voice.

The sick groaned in despair.

The well gritted their teeth with indignation.

And the police couldn't stop him.

But one day Providence picked him up with a congestive chill and sent him home to die, and he expired in agony.

He was buried in a cheap coffin, in a heap lot, and six weeks later his widow was married to a tinker.

And there was another man, and he also sold strawberries. Instead of roaring "Strawberries!" from down in the bottom of his boots he drove about at a gentle pace, knocked softly at every back door, and, as the girl appeared, he quietly remarked: "Please ask the lady of the house if she will buy fresh strawberries at eight cents a quart?"

And his ways were taking, and his berries went as fast as he could load up, and a syndicate of millionaires took hold of him and made him President of a National bank, with a salary of $10,000 per year. For further particulars see later editions.

This fell destroyer has brought a blight to many a promising life, and sadness to many a home circle. It has been used by hundreds with wonderful success; has checked the progress of disease and brought thousands back to health. Its property is to make new blood. For sale by druggists.

Not so much of a joke, after all.—He had his photograph taken one day when he was at the beach with the boys. It was not a good picture, for he was not exactly in condition for taking a good one. But he thought he would have a joke with his wife about it, so when he reached home he handed it to her, saying;

"There is the picture of a man who loves you."

She looked at it, and a deep blush over-spread her face as she said:

"It is like Jim. Where did you see him?"

He would give a good deal to know who Jim is.

ROBERT COOKE, JR., can appeal to every man in the county for a vote. There is everything in his favor, and nothing in opposition to him can be said. The ridiculous things concerning him that have been resorted to by the Democratic press are proofs of this. Vote for him.

BUILDINGS BLOWN UP.

MANY PEOPLE KILLED BY A ST LOUIS EXPLOSION.

Twelve Persons Buried in the Ruins Cause of the Disaster Not Known. Fire and Cries of Agony—Did Dynamite Do It?

ST LOUIS, Nov. 2.—A terrific explosion occurred about 2:30 o'clock this morning in the grocery store of Michael Newman, at No. 7 South Fourteenth street. The grocery and two adjoining two story brick buildings were nearly demolished, and twelve persons, including the wife and five children of Newman and two families living in the adjoining houses, were buried in the ruins.

The cause of the explosion is a mystery, some attributing it to the criminal use of dynamite, others to powder stored in the building, and others to the accidental explosion of gasoline. The people known to have been sleeping in the house were C. N. Devere and wife, who are missing, and Michael Newman, his wife and their children, Mamie, John, Edward, Neilie and Katie.

At 3:15 a. m. the firemen had succeeded in clearing away a space of ten square feet in the center of the ruins. A faint cry of agony broke on their ears. Fire was creeping in on three sides, but they fought off the flames to prevent the cremation of the suffering living as well as the remains of the dead. A child in the last tortures of death was handed out and placed in an ambulance and started toward the dispensary. A moment later Annie Newman's lifeless body was found, clasping in her arms her dead daughter Katie, aged 11.

The corpse of Michael Newman was found at the same timer. They were mangled and charred in a horrible manner. All the Newmans had been taken out, and all might as well be counted as dead, as the two suffering children cannot live. At 4:30 the dead bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Devere were found, horribly mangled and burned; also the body of a Miss Peevly, who had slept in an adjoining room.

There were more people in the building, and it is feared that the death list will be larger than at first reported. The work in the ruins is necessarily slow, because of the shattered condition of the building.

The only survivor taken from either No. 7 or No. 9 is Miss Hattie Brown, the sister and visitor of Mrs. Devere. She states that she awoke to find herself buried between heavy timbers somewhere against a wall. On one side of her a wall of fire reached the sky, while crashing timbers and clattering iron flew in a storm above her head. The screams of persons in adjoining buildings were fearful. She tried to escape, but was firmly pinned down. At last a settling of the wreck partially released the pressure and she struggled from beneath the debris.

How she made her way to the little back yard where she was found she cannot tell, except that it was staggering, falling and climbing through the ruins. The cause of the explosion is not positively known, but customers of Grocer Newman say that he carried a large stock of kerosene and gasoline in the rear room of his store.

Those near the explosion give it as their opinion that gasoline was the cause of the terrible disaster.

The following is a list of the dead recovered from the ruins:

Michael Newman, aged 52; Mrs. Annie Newman, aged 40; Miss Mamie Newman, aged 18; John Newman, aged 16; Nellie Newman, aged 15; Kate Newman, aged 11; Eddie Newman, aged 13; Charles Devere, Mrs. Charles Devere. Injured—Miss Hattie Brown, of Columbus, Ohio, bruised about the lower limbs; Charles Efferd, Miss Hattie Bryant, Mrs. Beasly.

Beside those injured in this building were many persons in the neighborhood, more or less cut and bruised. For several blocks on either side of the streets the concussion shattered the windows, and in the immediate vicinity on the opposite side of the way the fronts of buildings were mashed in and scarcely a window or a door remains. Walls cracked, floors gave way and plaster fell in almost every house within a radius of 100 yards. Sleepers thus awakened rushed screaming from their homes. The scene of terror on the street was illuminated by the glare of the flames. White figures wildly running and gesticulating, robed only in night dresses, were visible in the brilliant light.

The ambulance service was excellent. The wagons sent to the scene brought skilled attendants, and many physicians were on hand as soon as their services could be used. The police soon had control of the crowd. The firemen worked at the fallen buildings regardless of adjacent walls which towered with impending danger, and with daylight came the word that all the victims had been removed.

Mrs. Beasley, one of the victims of the catastrophe, is now dead. Mamie Newman died at the city hospital at 10 o'clock. Nellie Newman, reported dead, is still alive at the city hospital, but there is small hope of her recovery. Charles Devere was well known to circus show people, being an old and popular advance agent in the business.

A Woman Sentenced for Life.

BELFAST, Me., Nov. 2.—In the supreme court Martha M. Crockett has been sentenced to the state prison for life for the murder of her husband, Ruel Crockett, by poison at Swanville last December. She received her sentence without emotion or remorse. The crime for which Mrs. Crockett was sentenced has attracted widespread attention. It will be remembered that the evidence in the case was chiefly circumstantial, but of a character that was, beyond a question of doubt, as strong as though the actual evidence had been produced. The ingenious manner in which the poison was administered in fried apples, the command of Mrs. Crockett to her stepdaughter not to eat them and her threats prior to that to kill Crockett if she lived long enough, were all brought out at the trial.

Worth $10,000 a Week.

DETROIT, Nov. 2.—As editor of United Ireland William O'Brien received a salary of $20,000, and refused to draw more than enough to pay his current expenses. Dr. Charles O'Rielly, treasurer of the Irish league, says that now O'Brien is in prison he is worth to the Irish cause fully $10,000 a week. Dr. O'Rielly has sent the following telegram to Joseph Gellis Biggar, M. P., at London this morning:

"The League is getting into line. Ten thousand dollars more to test coercion. Half of this sum from fearless Philadelphia. O'Brien is worth $10,000 a week."

This is the second $10,000 that Treasurer O'Reilly has sent to London within a week.

She Fell Asleep at the Inquest.

DETROIT, Nov. 2.—The coroner's inquest in the case of Mrs. Jane Hoag, of Adrian, who drowned herself Saturday, was marked by a peculiar episode yesterday afternoon. Gertrude King, the principal witness, who is given to naps lasting from two to four hours, during which she cannot be aroused, fell asleep in the court room and could not be awakened. Finally the inquest was adjourned until to-morrow

EUROPEAN TOPICS.

Interesting Matters Cabled from the Other Side.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The police now assert that Melville, who they claim was the London agent of the Clan-na-Gael, is J. J. Moroney, and that he went to Boston a while ago, where he stayed at Young's hotel. He registered as "John J. Moroney, New York." The police say that he also called on the Kennedys, at No. 53 Charles street, Boston.

A Policeman's Prosecution Collapses.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The prosecution against Policeman Endacott, who arrested Miss Cass, the milliner's assistant, last June, for alleged street walking, has collapsed. Endacott was proceeded against for perjury and false arrest, but the judge in the case held that the statements of Miss Cass were not corroborated and discharged Endacott.

Seven Vessels Reported Wrecked.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Seven vessels are reported to have been wrecked at Cardiff during the recent storm, and many others at different places along the coast. Several deaths are reported from Brighton. The storm is about spent now and is rapidly decreasing.

Severe Gale in England.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—A severe gale is prevailing throughout England, and many minor disasters among shipping are reported. Numerous chimneys are blown down, telegraph wires are broken and in some places trees have been uprooted.

An Anarchist Leader Arrested.

VIENNA, Nov. 2.—Kercal, the Anarchist leader, has been arrested in connection with a fresh conspiracy against the government.

Big Price for the Wild West.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Buffalo Bill is willing to sell out his Wild West show for £130,000. He has been offered £80,000 and refused.

Arrival of the Thistle.

GLASGOW, Nov. 2.—The Scotch cutter Thistle arrived at Greenock today.

Preparations for War.

CROW AGENCY, M. T., Nov. 2.—The plan of dealing with the Crow Indians has been made known. The Indians are all commanded to be in camp at the Crow agency by Friday night. Those out then will be declared hostiles and war will be declared against them. A strong force of infantry and cavalry will be moved there to patrol the camp. All transportation from outside the camp has been ordered in. Deaf Bull, Pretty Eagle and Crazy Head have now joined the outlaws. The Indians will probably take a position on the hills near the agency. Several war chiefs have been to the Crow camps and ordered all who will not fight to go into the agency.

Mr. Blaine's Funny Stories.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—A Paris dispatch to The News says: "The Stanley club, at an assessment of thirty francs a head, banqueted ex-Consul General Walker to-night, and Mr. Blaine occupied the second post of honor. There were thirty guests present. Replying to Gen. Read's toast, Mr. Blaine, after playfully intimating that it was hoped to entrap him into making some startling utterance, said he was avoiding public speeches, concluded by passing a eulogium on Mr. Walker. Mr. Blaine told several stories, and everybody laughed heartily, including the Parisian Irishman, Kelly, who afterward said he could not see anything funny in them after all."

An Incendiary Caught.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—One at least of the incendiaries who have destroyed property in this city has been arrested, namely, Paul Charbonneau, aged 19, against whom a warrant has been issued for arson. After the fire he suddenly left the city and tramped through the eastern states until he reached Holyoke, Mass., where he asked for night quarters at the police station. On being searched a slip of one of the Montreal papers with an account of the fire was found on him, and he was held for the Montreal high constable who brought him back yesterday. He will stand trial at the court of queen's bench next month.

A Possible Clew.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 2.—Detective Lazarus, of this city, thinks the tuft of light hair found in the carriage with Harn's body at Chicago may lead to detection of the murderer. He says a man who went to Pittsburg with Harn the Sunday night he was killed came back here and started a story that Harn had been arrested and sent to jail for sixty days. This man had light hair. There was no reason why he should circulate such a story unless he knew of Harn's fate and wanted to prevent identification of the body when found. Lazarus is looking for this man and thinks he can find him.

Counterfeiter McCartney Released.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Nov. 2.—Peter McCartney, the famous counterfeiter, had a preliminary hearing before United States Judge Alton on the charge of having in his possession counterfeit money with intention to pass it. The charge is an old one, having stood against him for twelve years. Judge Alton bound him over to the January term of court under bonds of $1,000 upon his own recognizance, and he was released.

Broker Bliven Sentenced.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 2.—Broker Courtlandt H. Bliven, who was convicted in the Kings county court of sessions for being implicated in the abortion on Miss Frankie Bell, in connection with Mrs. Nellie Wood and Mrs. Marie Jahn, was today sentenced to be confined in Sing Sing at hard labor for a term of three years and six months

A Prison Warden Arrested.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 2.—Warden Stordock, of the Stillwater penitentiary, was arrested yesterday on warrants sworn out by Fayette Marsh, who was attorney for ex-Warden Reed during the recent investigation. The charges of subornation of perjury and criminal libel are based on facts brought out in the investigation.

Mexicans on the War Path.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 2.—Jose Gutierrez, major domo of the Losaquade ranch, a sheep ranch owned by Jacobo Y. Prissari, has been killed by a gang of cowboys. A party of ten armed Mexicans started from here to the scene of the murder, and it is not unlikely that more trouble will ensue.

Fatalities While Driving.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 2.—Sunday afternoon a party of two ladies and two gentlemen from Atchison, Kan., were thrown from a buggy on Charles street, and both men and one lady were fatally injured. The other lady, Miss Ida Watson, now lies in a critical condition.

A motto for the Liquor League to remember. "There's many a slip between the cup and the lip."

All Sorts.

The sons of the Union soldiers will vote as their fathers fought—to protect the government.

The rebels failed to capture the government in the rebellion, but they did so twenty years later.

An Irishman who had on a very ragged coat was asked of what stuff it was made. 'Bedad I don't know!" said he "but I think the most of it is made of fresh air."

An embarrassed young man who had just been married, not knowing how to express his gratitude, in handing over a small fee said: "I hope to give you more next time."

IT is a remarkable, but at the same time a most commendable, dispensation of Providence that the great hotels at summer resorts never burn up until the business of the season is over, when the burning of the building and receiving of the insurance thereon is of some account. Servants are only careful about defective flues while the house is filled with guests, and when they have once departed things are permitted to take the natural course of events

IF Free Trade betters the condition of a people, why do not our mechanics and laborers emigrate to Great Britain? Labor seeks its best reward, and hence the thousands who leave Free Trade Europe for protected America. Does anybody wish a better illustration of the value of a Protective Tariff?

THE Liquor League will get out every vote it can to defeat the Republican party. Imitate its example in this respect and see that every Republican in your district votes on the 8th of November.

WE are in favor of the doctrine of the Personal Liberty League to this extent—we believe in the right of every man to do as he pleases so long as he pleases to do right.

Baltimore Elections.

BALTIMORE, October 26.—Considering the exciting campaign preceding it to day's election for mayor passed off with unusual quietness. There were a few disturbances of small importance and one fatal shooting affray, in which Edward Allers, an independent democrat, shot and killed Edward Darley, one of the regulators. Aller's friends claim the shooting was accidental, but he was placed under arrest and will be charged with murder.

Latrobe, democrat, received 34,640 votes and Barlett, republican, 30,435—giving Latrobe a majority of 4,205, a democratic gain of nearly 2,000 since the election for mayor two years ago. The newly elected city council will consist of twelve democrats and eight republicans in the first branch and seven democrats and three republicans in the second branch. The result of the election was a great surprise to the republicans who counted largely on reform aid and were confident of victory. Already cries of fraud are heard and renewed efforts will be made to carry the state at the gubernatorial election two weeks hence.

Grand Army Reunion.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 26.—This is the opening day of the first annual reunion of the members of the Grand Army of ths Republic in the States of Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, and West Virginia.

Preparations have been made on an extensive scale for the reception and entertainment of the men who helped to save the Union, and it promises, from present indications, to be a memorable day. Many of the houses along the line of procession to-morrow will be handsomely festooned. At headquarters all is bustle and activity. The rooms are thronged with happy comrades, Sons of Veterans and members of the ladies' relief corps.

To-day's programme consists principally of receptions of the different visiting posts from Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky as they arrived. The commander of the department of Kentucky reached the city to-day, and Commander Putnam, of Ohio, and Past Commander Carnahan, of Indiana, are expected to-morrow morning. Private Dalzell arrived to-night.

Material for a Novel.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—When Buffalo Bill, with his cowboys, Indians and bronchos, visited Manchester, England, Johnnie O'Brien, 15 years old, was a rapt spectator. He longed to shoot buffalos on the fly. Without even a change of clothing Johnnie left home and skipped for America as a stroker on the steamship Helvetia. He arrived here at the same time Father Riordan received a letter from his uncle, Major O'Brien, who is stationed at New Tavern Fort, Gravesend. The Major stated that his nephew had left a good home and thought proper to become a howling cowboy on America's plains. He begged Father Riordan to capture the lad if possible, stating that he would probably go to Mr. Daley's place, at No. 23 South Fifth avenue.

To-day Johnnie came into Mr. Daley's place more dead than alive. He told Mr. Daley that the spirit of the cowboy that had held possession of him had been unceremoniously cast out while shoveling coal down in the Helvetia's hold and parading the streets of New York dead broke. He wanted to go home. Word was sent Father Riordan, and to-morrow he will sail for England.

A Rich Bonaparte.

Special by Cable to the Pittsburg Dispatch.

PARIS, October 25.—Prince Roland Bonaparte, who married Miss Blanc, of Monte Carlo, has just returned from a triumphal tour through Corsica, where he has been visiting the birthplace of Napoleon I. A few years ago Prince Roland and his mother and his sister were living in a garret in the most reduced circumstances. Madame Bonaparte, mother and widow of Pierre, was a woman of very humble origin. The Bonapartes, Napoleon III. included, snubbed this branch of the family. There is now some thought of exiling Roland, who has great political aspirations and large fortune to aid him.

The expenses of the recent experimental mobilization of the Seventeenth Army Corps amounted to about 5,000,000 francs. The Cabinet Council has decided to hold a separate exhibition to cele brate the centennial of 1789. The grand banquet to be given in honor of the first anniversary of the unveiling of the Statue of Liberty will take place at the Hotel Continental, Friday evening, 28th inst. Count de Lesseps was to have presided, but the recent death of his brother, Count Jules, will probably deter him from doing so Mr. Blaine and McLane, the American Minister, will be present. There will be speeches. Bartholdi arrived from Colmar, Alsace, yesterday, in order to be present at the banquet.

A Lad Kills Himself.

WILLIAMSPORT, Oct. 26.—Robert Lattimore and Boyd Trump, lads of 16, were hunting rabbits, yesterday on the farm of the former's father, Robert Lattimore, Sr., one mile south of Elimsport, this county. Young Lattimore was in the act of loading his double-barreled gun when the weapon was discharged, the load of shot striking him on the upper lip and tearing its way up into his brain, coming out over the right eye. The lad died soon afterwards.

Davis and the Rebel Flag.

MACON, Ga., October 27.—Yesterday was "Confederacy Day" in Macon. It was the last gasp, but it was a startling one. Everywhere throughout the city confederate flags were flying. Everybody has from one to a dozen badges on his breast indicative of love for Jeff Davis and the "Lost Cause," but still the leading and thinking people here say that it means no disloyalty to the union; that it is only a last farewell to the man, who must soon leave this world, and to the cause these people fought for under him.

It was not until somebody handed the ragged battle-flag of the Third Georgia regiment over the heads of the crowd that the storm blew its worst. Mr. Davis grasped the tatters of the flag and pressed them to his lips. This was the signal for the most violent breaking forth. The air was full of such expressions as "God bless Jeff Davis!" "God bless the flag!" and kindred sentiments. Men in the crowd below and men and women on the porch broke down under the strain put upon their emotions, and in a moment the entire multitude was in tears.

The old confederate president waved the battle-torn ensign over the heads of the people, who yelled and threw their hats away and cried like so many children. Mrs. Davis and two daughters kissed the flag; in turn for each kiss five thousand huzzahs went up. Mrs. Davis at last tore off a shred of the flag and placed it within the bosom of her dress, whereupon a perfect pandemonium of "God bless you!" and similar shouts was let loose. When the flag was handed back to the multitude, the men snatched all valuable tatters and pressed them warmly to their lips. Pretty soon Mr. Davis arose, facing the people in the attitude of a speech maker, finally to bring about a lull, in which he was heard by the very nearest ones to say:

"Friends and Brothers—I am like that old flag, tattered and torn by storms and years. I love it for its own sake and for yours. I love it as a memento of what your fathers did and what they hoped you would do. I will see you again."

At this point another flag—one of the old original flags with three bars and eleven stars—was passed up and Mr. Davis and his entire family kissed and wept over it. Presently Gov. Gordon pressed to the front of the porch and began a speech, which was to take the crowd from the feeble old man who was so excited that he trembled violently. Under cover of the speech, Mr. Davis was put in a carriage and driven to the fair grounds, where there was a repetition of the scene at Captain Johnston's.

Teemer Defeats Gaudaur.

LAKE MARANACOOK, Me., Oct. 28.—The weather this morning was all that could be desired and the water good, but the predictions of a close and fast race were not borne out by the result. The men were ordered on the line at the appointed time. When Referee Ormonde gave the word "go" they sped away in good shape. Teemer made up his mind to outrow Gaudaur, and so pulled for all he was worth. The race for the first mile was all that the spectators could wish, but the McKeesport sculler soon showed his superiority over his rival and drew away from him. Gaudaur tugged manfully at his sculls, and, with his great strength and skill fully brought into play, spurted again and again and did everything that he could to get on even terms with Teemer, but to no purpose. The champion of America saw him every time and went a little better and won the race handily in twenty minutes and twenty eight and five-eighth seconds. Gaudaur was a half mile behind and paddled home leisurely.

Elected Delegates and Adjourned.

HARRISBURG, October 28.—The convention of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic adjourned this afternoon after agreeing to meet hereafter at the same time and place as the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, except next January, when only the advisory council will meet with the old soldiers at Allentown. It was decided today to take steps in the department looking to the founding of a home for the wives of indigent soldiers and widows of dead comrades. Mrs. Jones, of Altoona, who is a delegate-at-large; Mrs. Bargesser, and Mrs. Johnson, of Pittsburg, and Mrs. Houck, of Reading, were chosen delegates to the national convention.

Ladies of the Grand Army.

HARRISBURG, October 26.—To-day the third annual convention of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic of Pennsylvania met and will be in session three days. Eighty-five delegates have arrived. The report of Mrs. Bruner, of Altoona, the secretary, shows a growth of eleven circles during the past year and a total membership 1,700 in the state. Routine business was transacted to-day.

The Last Game.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 26.—The concluding game of the world's championship series was played here to-day. The weather was cold and the players were ready to quit at the conclusion of the sixth inning. The St. Louis men did the cleanest and hardest hitting that they yet have done and won the game with ease. Score, 9 to 2.

A Big Industry Vanished.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., October 28.—The Erie railway officials have just issued an order changing the name of their station, 44 miles out from New York, from Greenwood works to Arden. The change marks the final collapse of the great iron mining and smelting industries that were carried on in the locality for more than three-quarters of a century. The furnaces at Greenwood were erected in 1812 by two brothers named Cunningham, for the purpose of reducing the valuable ores found in the Mount Bashan, O'Neill, Hogencamp and other valuable mines in the vicinity. In 1852 the property which then included the smelting furnaces, mines, tramways and machinery, and 10,300 acres of land, was purchased by Peter and Robert Parrott, and they, after operating the works for 28 years, were succeeded in the ownership in 1880 by the Parrott iron company, a corporation, with $500,000 capital.

The Parriott company made a bad failure about two years ago, and the subsequent sale of the property under legal proceedings by the referee appointed by the courts has been followed by the total cessation of the great industries connected therewith. Workmen are now engaged dismantling the furnaces and taking up the railroad tracks. The mining machinery and apparatus was purchased and removed recently by Pennsylvania parties. The 10,300 acres of land were bought in by some of the creditors of Parriott iron company, who propose, it is said, to convert it into a rural pleasure resort on a grand scale, after the pattern of Tuxedo park.

The tract includes a body of land in the Ramapo Highlands, about three miles wide and five miles long, lying north of the Erie railway, and in the town of Monroe, Highland, Blooming Grove and Haverstraw, in Orange and Rockland counties. It is said that the tract vies with Tuxedo Park in the beauty and variety of its lake, mountain and forest scenery, and its natural adaptation to the purpose in view. Arden, which will be the principal railroad station of the new park, is six miles west of Tuxedo.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after testing its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. ### Glue for Clothes.

"Excuse me, I thought I was in Mr. Jones' place."

"And so you are."

"Yes, but I mean Jones the tailor."

"Well, this is Jones, the tailor."

"No. 120?"

This was the conversation that followed a hurried entrance into a downtown tailering establishment by a reporter for the Mail and Express this morning. As he opened the door he came upon a man with a glue-pot in one hand and a brush in the other. A perceptible odor of the gelatinous compound pervaded the entire apartment.

"Oh, yes," the reporter at last found breath to say, recognizing Mr. Jones in the back part of the shop. "Are my trousers done?"

"Not yet; about noon. Brown is just going to turn the bottoms."

Brown was the man with the glue pot. The reporter watched him. He took the brush, and daubing the lower part of the leg of a pair of fine black Melton trousers with glue, turned them up and laying a hot iron on them, said:

"Yes, sir; come in about noon; they will be done by that time."

"But, Jones, I want my trousers sewed. You are building those as a man would a house."

"That's all right my boy. We turn out only first class work. Glue beats thread. No rips, no seams showing, no creases, you know."

And, sure enough, when at noon the trousers came home the owner found in several places where he had heretofore been accustomed to see his garments held together by thread that glue had been used.

—Electric light has been rather uncertain the past few evenings.

—A large flock of wild geese flew over Bellefonte on Friday morning.

—There was an inch of snow in the mountains, near Clearfield, last week.

—The young men had a large fire in the Diamond on Friday evening to celebrate the presence in town of the 148th.

—Mr. Faxon, the engineer at the electric light works, has moved into the house on Lamb street, formerly occupied by Mr. C. P. Hilder and family.

—The fly wheel in the rod mill of the Howard Rolling Mill Company, at Howard, bursted on Friday and was hurled through the roof, doing considerable damage.

—Miss Laura Bird, of Eagleville, was married on Tuesday of last week to Lawrence Stout, Esq., of Renovo. The wedding occurred in Lock Haven at the home of Mrs. Kane.

—Mr. William Foster, the merchant at Lemont, has purchased Stewart's store at State College and expects to take possession soon. We suppose, of course, that he will give up his business in Lemont.

—Whoever threw a stone through the portrait of that noble soldier, General Winfield Scott Hancock, which is suspended below the flag in the Diamond —whoever did that, we say, was guilty of a most contemptible deed.

—A surprise party was given, on Friday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cessna, on East Lamb street. It was in honor of the mother of Mr. Cessna. She resides in Bedford and is now visiting her son here. The occasion was a pleasant one.

—On Thursday Mr. James Schofie'd introduced us to a Mr. Gilbert, who, we understood him to say, is a member of the 148th and had been lost for twenty years. But Mr. Gilbert winked as if he wanted us to take Schofield's description as a joke, so we will.

—Ex-Gov. Curtin, ex-Congressman Mackey and Evan Blanchard, Esq., met in front of the Bush House on High street on Wednesday at 5 o'clock p. m. and discussed the important developments in progress in the material and business interests of Bellefonte.

—A wedding event of interest occurred Thursday morning at 9 o'clock in Trinity M. E. church, Lock Haven. Miss Rose Hiller, of that place, was married to Mr. John Myers, of Atlantic City. The bride and groom will go to Europe for their honeymoon journey.

—The story published in this paper to-day is entitled "Her Forgery." While we consider it a fairly interesting story we do not approve of the lesson it seems to teach. The wife should not have committed forgery, but should have secured the money in some honest way. The end does not justify the means.

—Mr. S. A. Stover has received a superb and valuable monument of Scotch granite which is now in his marble yard on High street. The proportions and designs of this monument are very beautiful. It was procured, we understand, at the order of Mr. W. R. Jenkins and will be placed over the graves of his parents in Howard.

—Clement Dale, Esq., sustained quite a heavy loss on Tuesday morning. He had about sixty chickens. They would not all go in the coop at night to roost, but would nestle under the high plants in the garden. On Tuesday morning Mr. Dale found that seventeen of them were dead. Their throats had been cut, probably by a weasel.

—In front of the residence of Clement Dale, Esq., on Willow Bank street, is a new boardwalk of a substantial character. Her has also recently built a crossing in front of his property. It is made of the very best and most durable stone obtainable. Such a crossing was greatly needed and we understand that Mr. Dale did it at his individual expense.

—The Silver Leaf Social Club (an organization of colored people) gave an entertainment in Armory Hall (the Rink) on Thursday evening which was in all respects an enjoyable and successful affair. Not only were the socially inclined present from among Bellefonte's colored population, but there were also visitors from abroad. Numerous white folks looked on and enjoyed the dancing and music immensely.

—The DAILY NEWS, in its account of the Y. M. C. A. Anniversary, said it was the 17th. We believe, however, that this was an error. The Association, being organized in 1869, clearly the first anniversary was in 1870 and, counting one for each year since that time, would make seventeen since 1870, or eighteen in all. We are glad, however, that the DAILY NEWS is considered authority even when it makes a mistake. We notice that all the papers have followed the NEWS in calling it the 17th.

THE 148TH.

REUNION IN BELLEFONTE ON THURSDAY—PUBLIC MEETING THAT EVENING—DECORATIONS.

During the day the blue coated veterans were resting in the elegant rooms of Gregg Post, where Col. D. S. Keller, D. F. Fortney, R. C. Irvin, Joseph Fox, Capt Bayard and many others succeeded in making them comfortable. The disagreeable day rendered it unpleasant for them to spend much time on the streets.

Reunion Notes.

The Brockerhoff House was the first to decorate.

The Bush House put out some gay bunting and numerous flags that morning.

Early in the morning the town began to assume quite a lively appearance. John Anderson put out bright colors. The Centre county bank did the same, Ex-Gov. Curtin's residence smiled behind a profusion of patriotic colors and even Harvey Benner's cuban cigar store looked up from the basement floor through flags and bunting.

S. H. Williams and Walter Bayard display decoration at their respective business places, David Glenn proves that "Bucktails" know how to do it in good style, John Sourbeck's, Montgomery & Co., and about all the stores in Brockerhoff House row show their colors and the Joseph Brothers have a beautiful flag in front of their residence. McCalmont & Co. display colors and the REPUBLICAN skirmished around and hunted up one flag for the corner window.

Many veterans arrived in the morning on the several trains. At noon that day the following names appeared on the register:

Henry C Allen, of Company G, with Joseph Fox.

Dr J W Allen, surgeon of Company G, at the Bush House.

Washington G Brady, of Company H, (and wife), guests of the Messrs. Dales and Josephs, at Brown's Hotel.

Shot Through the Hand.

Mr. E. C. Austin, conductor on the Snow Shoe train, also acts as express messenger on the train. This makes it necessary for him to carry a revolver. The weapon which he had in his possession is defective in some way. At least, Mr. Austin had tried, on several occasions, to discharge it, without success. So he took it into the express office Thursday morning to give to Mr. Hoover, who manages the Bellefonte office. Mr. Hoover was to send it to Philadelphia and procure a new one. Mr. Austin stood near the stove showing Mr. Hoover how difficult it was to discharge the weapon, when it went off, the bullet passing through his left hand between the knuckles, without injuring the bones, but terribly lacerating the flesh. Dr. Geo. Harris dressed the wound.

After going through Austin's hand the bullet struck the stove and bounded against the wall.

—The extensive building operations in progress in Bellefonte benefit all the county and mechanics from adjoining towns have been engaged here all summer. We notice that Mr. Aaron Thomas, of Centre Hall, has been working here all the season. The prospects are that carpenters, plasterers, paper hangers, painters and others who work inside will have employment all through the winter, while there will be enough outside work to keep stone masons and other workmen busy as long as the weather will permit. Next summer will probably also be a very busy one in respect to the building operations to be carried on.

Did He Commit Suicide?

On Wednesday morning William H. Lee, a blacksmith living at Shade Gap, Huntingdon county, was found dead in bed in the Leister House, Huntingdon. A dispatch to the Altoona Tribune dated Wednesday, gives particulars as follows:

He died of suffocation by gas, the direct result of either accident or design. Mr. Lee called at the hotel last night for supper and requested to be shown to a room, intending, he said, to remain over night and take the train for Broad Top this morning, where he purposed looking after a new situation. He had been working at his trade at the Rockhill coal company's ore banks, near Shade Gap, but being dissatisfied with the wages he received, he concluded to quit and seek employment elsewhere.

On first arriving in town last night he went to the Farmers' hotel, where he registered. Here it was noticed he was visibly affected by drink, and could scarcely write his name. He soon afterwards left and sought lodging at the Leister house. After he had eaten supper the attention of Clifford Graffius, the clerk, was directed to the melancholy appearance of Mr. Lee, who sat apart from the rest of the hotel guests in the office, and seemed to be brooding over some real or imaginary trouble. About 10 o'clock he was shown to his room on the third floor. Clerk Graffius accompanied him thither and, to make sure that his guest understood the operation of the gas fixture, Mr. Graffius directed his attention to it, and Mr. Lee replied that he fully understood how to extinguish it.

Nothing unusual was discovered until about 5 o'clock this morning, when the porter, Cyrus Beers, in calling several guests who were sleeping on the same floor, discovered a strong smell of gas and on investigating the cause found it to emanate from the room occupied by Mr. Lee. With the assistance of a number of the boarders the porter burst open the door, when it was discovered that the occupant of the room was dead. From his appearance Mr. Lee had been dead for several hours. He was lying between the wall and the bed and partly on the floor. Acting Coroner Brumbaugh summoned a jury of inquistion, which, upon investigation, found that the deceased had come to his death by suffocation by gas, either through accident or design. The remains were prepared for burial and taken to his late home, at Shade Gap. He was about 40 years old and leaves a wife and four children.

Mr. Lee was a man given to intemperance, and he had frequently expressed his intention to commit sucide. The affair created a great deal of excitement at the hotel.

Harvest Home Address.

On Sunday morning of this week the Methodist congregation at Curtin's Works observed the harvest home festival. Clement Dale, Esq, was invited to make the address and, with his usual willingness, complied. Being of an energetic, active disposition, he walked all the way on Sunday morning, from his home here to the church at Curtins, arriving there in good time for the service. The morning air and the walk through a lovely country inspired him with a full appreciation of the beauties of the Autumn season and the bounteous wealth of the harvest which regularly rewards the efforts of the earnest toiler. Hence, it is unnecessary to add that his remarks were beautiful, thoughtful and earnest. They were listened to with delight by the congregation, the members of which were lavish in their praise. The harvest home festivals are decidedly pleasant occasions and certainly highly appropriate as a recognition of Divine goodness, so abundantly shown forth at this time.

—In many respects the conductor of a passenger train has a varied and often pleasant experience. Particularly, his duty of assisting the lady passenger into the cars and to alight from them is interesting. Of course, the travelers among the female sex are of all kinds and descriptions and his position compels him to pay equal respect and attention to all. We have seen the conductor stand at the platform of the cars and catch the ladies in his arms one by one as they come bounding and tripping down the steps. They sometimes come thick and fast and considerable activity is necessary on the part of the conductor. But what pleasure it must afford him to catch a beautiful dumpling of a young lady in his arms and deposit her gently on the platform.

—Another scoffold accident occurred in Williamsport on Tuesday of last week. Meredith H. Harman and Henry A. Bartholomew were standing on a scaffold in front of the new residence of A. D. Hermance when the board broke and they fell a distance of twenty feet to the ground. Both men were very seriously hurt. The Lumber City should afford better material of which to build scaffolding. The frequent accidents of this sort do not speak well for the quality of the lumber.

HEROES OF THE WAR.

THE REUNION OF THE 148TH—WHAT THE VETERANS DID ON THURSDAY EVENING AND FRIDAY.

The officers and comrades of the 148th regiment who were in Bellefonte on Thursday were not under orders, so they did as they pleased. They remained in Gregg Post Hall and ante-rooms narrating very pleasantly many reminiscences of the war, from the horrors of which they had escaped with their lives. At 5 o'clock a drum corps went to the two trains which arrive at that time to meet the fresh arrivals.

In the evening at 7.30 o'clock a public meeting was held in the Court House, and we were somewhat surprised when we arrived at the hall of justice to find it comfortably filled. The comrades were assembled inside the bar and were sufficient in number to fill that space.

Col. Wm. McFarlane called the assemblage to order and asked for nominations for President of the meeting. D. F. Fortney, Esq, named Gov. James A. Beaver and it is unnecessary to say that the vote "aye" was unanimous. Sergeant Robert H. Patterson was elected secretary. Gov. Beaver talked familiarly of some of the incidents of the conflict and said that entire absence of formality would contribute to the pleasure, to which all agreed. When ex-Gov. Curtin entered there was a burst of applause.

The choir opened the musical part of the exercises with "America," in which the audience united. Mr. Schaeffer and a complete choir lead the music.

Rev. William Gemmill, of Northumberland county, offered a fervent and eloquent prayer.

"Tramp, tramp, tramp," was sang by the choir in a spirited style.

Gov. Beaver pleasantly introduced ex-Gov. Curtin, reminding the veterans of the time during the war when he had introduced the Governor to them.

The erect figure of the ex-Governor was at once visible and he delivered one of his characteristic speeches. He expressed the plesure he felt it to be to perform the duty of extending a welcome to the remnant of the regiment which was 1,000 strong when he first saw it. At that time the regiment was on its way from Cockeyville to Washington. The next time he saw it was on the occasion of the incident referred to in Gov. Beaver's introductory remarks. They were then a magnificent body of men.

Again he had seen them at Falmouth after the battle of Chancellorville, where he remained with them over night. His sleeping companion that night was a large dog which was evidently a favorite in the regiment. The Colonel of the regiment was not with it that day; he had been wounded. Of one company—Capt. Bible's—only fourteen remained of the sixty-four that had entered the battle. To such men he would render the homage of gratitude for their services. "Gentlemen, I bow to you."—Applause.

The war has passed. Whatever may be said of its mistakes, it saved the government from destruction. No future army will do the same or an equal service. It did not make war on women or children. You killed men in honorable battle—they would have killed you if they could—(Voice, "Yes, they would.") The first man born into the world killed the second—his brother, too—and war will continue forever. We are located 3,000 miles from any Nation that can wage war—hence, we are safe if we do not fight among ourselves.

The South was compelled to submit. It must put on blue and acknowledge the flag. There is now no disposition to engage in war. The easy and natural manner in which the vast army was disbanded and its members became peaceful citizens was the marvel of other nations. At this part of his speech he related a story about a typical soldier who, though anxious on all occasions to carry the flag, yet never failed to get drunk, and would like some more war of the same sort. He told the veterans what he had occasion to say to the Loyal Legion, a few evenings previous, regarding the private soldier. These men before him were young when he gave them the flag; now they are old—and bald. Yet not so old as himself. They have a long time to live if they take care of themselves. He asked them ever to remember the dead comrades. Affecting, indeed, are his sensations when, on each recurring visit to Gettysburg, he sees the graves of the unknown.

His remarks closed with poetic and beautiful words regarding the propriety of observing Memorial day and the expressed wish that a leaf may be placed on his grave when he, too, is numbered with the departed.

Comrade Holahan, of Company G, arose to respond. He felt much honored in being appointed to respond to a welcome from one so illustrious. To add anything to the excellent sentiments already expressed would be the same as to endeavor to add perfume to the violet. He would take refuge in the Governor's expressed wish that there should be no oratory, but simply informality. At this time, he said, the soldiers feel young again. They would be buoyant in spirits as at a family reunion though the ranks have been reduced. He was with the regiment until wounded at Spottsylvania. Wherever he goes he hears of the 148th. His proudest thought is that he belonged to it, that it originated in Centre county and was commanded by Governor Beaver.

Taking his cue from the preceding speaker's remarks in regard to the change of the army into citizens, he told how they had returned to useful and profitable avocations and by labor had paid the war debt. This government with its vast interests should be wealthy, but what shall be done with the surplus? No use of talking about the $100,000,000 while wounded soldiers tramp and their children cry for bread. To give them this money will be only to restore to them a small part of what is their due.

This meeting reminded him of the days in camp after a battle. Grant that the pleasures of camp may come to comrades in their dying hours and that they may be lulled to sleep by music of heavenly choristers.

No. 30, "Marching through Georgia," was rendered by the choir and audience.

The chairman says that there are several places on the battlefield of Gettysburg which were occupied by the regiment, that should be marked with memorials. The amount appropriated by the Legislature should be supplement with other contributions that the memorials may be executed in a substantial manner. The work must be done in the coming year. The history of the regiment should be written. Major Harry Forster was mentioned as a suitable selection. Cassidy and Harper should contribute the major's story. The adjutant's narrative may be given by Muffley and Ramsey; the quartermaster's by Kurtz and Musser; the Lieutenant Colonel's by Col. McFarlane. Major Brown's story of the one hundred picked men from the 148th, who did what the Ninth corps failed to accomplish must be written; also Kellerman's story connected with that achievement; the captain's story by Patterson and Harper; the prisoner's story and also that of the private.

Three committees were appointed as follows:

On Permanent Organization—Stewart of Company G, Lyle, of Company I, Campbell of Co. D, Miller, of Co. A, and Harper, of Co. B.

On Order of Business—Fortney, of Co. D, Marlin, of Co. I, and Forster, of Co. A.

On Enrollment—Woodring, of Co. H, Keller, of Co. G, and Fox, of Co. G.

Pending the reports of the committees Comrade William R. Harpster sang "We've drank from the same canteen," playing an accompaniment.

The committee on Order of Business reported first that there should be a meeting at 9.30 a. m. on Friday. The first business to be the election of officers; 2d, the consideration of memorial tablets and to appoint committees thereon; 3d; to elect a historian; 4th, general remarks pertaining to the good of the organization.

The gathering adjourned for the purpose of permitting the comrades to sit on a log and tell stories.

FRIDAY MORNING'S SESSION.

We suppose soldiers, when not on duty, are never very prompt. At least, it was long after 9.30 o'clock Friday morning when they came, one at a time, into the Court House. It seems to us that their greatest pleasure is to meet and talk on the most familiar terms and anything which partakes of formality is to them distasteful and quiets them at once.

It was easy to see (when they assembled that morning) that their number had received many accessions since the Thursday evening meeting.

Comrade Stewart, chairman of the committee on permanent organization, reported the following, which was adopted:

President—Gen. James A. Beaver.

Vice Presidents—Field and staff, Col. George A. Fairlamb.

Co. A, Thomas E. Royer.
" B, Col. James F. Weaver.
" C, Thomas Williams.
" D, Rev. William Germmill.
" E, Capt. John F. Sutton.
" F, Lieut. Wm. Lucas.
" G, Lieut. Joseph Fox.
" H, Serg't Herman K. Miller.
" I, Serg't Shelewick Swineford.
" K, Capt. Jerry Z. Brown.

Secretaries—D. S. Keller, George M. Boal and Robert H. Patterson.

Treasurer—Col. Wm. McFarlane.

Historian—Col. R. H. Forster.

Committee: JNO. W. STEWART, H. C. CAMPBELL, WM. D. HARPER, R. B. LYLE, JOHN A. MILLER.

The next item of business was the consideration of the erection of markers or monuments on the battlefield of Gettysburg. The chairman, Governor Beaver, stated some peculiarities regarding the formation of the line of the 148th, and, from the Pamphlet Law, read the recent legislation on the subject. Major R. H. Forster gave many recollections of the part taken by the 148th in the battle.

Comrade Howard, of F, added to Major Forster's remarks.

Fourteen names were nominated from which to select a committee of five on memorials. On motion, a committee, consisting of comrades, Gemmill, Keller and Lyle, was appointed to select the five members of the memorial committee.

The members of the Memorial committee, as finally selected, are: Major R. H. Forster, S. J. Marlin, Wm. McFarlane, R. A. Patterson and William Lucas.

A good many statistics came out during the morning. There are 360 survivors of the regiment whose addresses may be obtained. Of these, 117 were enrolled as present up to noon to-day. Those who were in the Court House at 11.20 o'clock were perhaps about one hundred. All who had received wounds in the service were requested to rise and fifty-five were counted. The proportion who had received wounds among those who have died was still larger, showing that Bates' History, which records a total of only 400 wounded in the regiment, is certainly incorrect. The real number was probably nearer 800.

The best plan to give aid to Historian Forster in the preparation of his history of the regiment was discussed.

—We should think that common sense and wisdom which the Pennsylvania Railroad authorities are sometimes supposed to possess would teach them, without their attention being called to the fact, that a railing should be constructed all the way along the race on the side next the track, as far as the depot platform extends, to keep passengers from plunging into the water when they alight from the cars. Passengers have, at times, gone head-long into the water, and the number of narrow escapes from so doing is large. It so happens that the persons who have fallen in the water were individuals who did not care to have any notoriety, which fact has saved the company from a suit for heavy damages. It is certainly a regular man-trap and we do not see why the company cannot be compelled to afford proper protection.

HALL'S

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years Doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure now on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and muscus surface of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circular and testimonials. Address, F. J. JAS. H. DOBBINS, P. M.

—The people of Snow Shoe and vicinity are to be provided with fresh meat very cheap until after the holidays. Mr. George M. Reeser has perfected arrangements to sell excellent roasts, steaks and boiling pieces remarkably cheap. Mr. Reeser numbers his patrons by the hundreds. He and his two young sons are more than ordinarily expert butchers. One son is 13 years of age and the other only 9, but they and their father kill, every week, ten head of beef cattle, four hogs and the usual supply of other animals that are used in their season.

What Am I to Do?

The symptoms of Biliousness are unhappily but too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A Bilious man is seldom a breakfast eater. Too frequently, alas, he has an excellent appetite for liquids but none for solids of a morning. His tongue will hardly bear inspection at any time; if it is not white and furred, it is rough, at all events.

The digestive system is wholly out of order and Diarrhea or Constipation may by a symptom or the two may alternate. There are often Hemorrhoids or even loss of blood. There may be giddiness and often headache and acidity or flatulence and tenderness in the pit of the stomach. To correct all this if not effect a cure try Green's August Flower, it costs but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy.

—The inspecting party of Pennsylvania Railroad officials, who have been traversing the line as far west as Indianapolis, are returning and drew into the Bellefonte station on Saturday. They are traveling in handsome style. Two large coaches at either end of the train are supplemented by two other cars of even more extensive proportions—one a dining car and the other a sleeper. Some one again starts the rumor that President Roberts brought a new depot building along in his coat pocket, but it has not yet been put in position.

—The Bilger Brothers are making the necessary arrangements to operate a saw mill at Pleasant Gap. They have had men at work all summer getting out logs and bark. The mill is also secured and an engine of 40-horse power. It is expected that operations will begin soon.

—The Episcopal church in Philipsburg is being repainted outside and the interior decorated with fresco work.

BRILLIANT WEDDING.

A SOCIAL EVENT IN DANVILLE IN WHICH BELLEFONTE PEOPLE ARE MUCH INTERESTED.

On Tuesday evening of last week, Oct. 25, B. Frank Keller, Esq., of the Department of the Interior, Washington City, was married to Miss Mercy J. Baldy, daughter of Mrs. Chas. C. Baldy, of Danville. The ceremony occurred at 8 o'clock in Christ (Memorial) church, that place, and the bride is the grandniece of the founder and donor of the beautiful edifice.

The ceremony was a noteworthy event. Two gates beautifully trimmed with the letters B and K in white flowers entwined thereon were placed just above the steps leading to the choir stalls of the church, and on reaching these gates they were thrown open by the two foremost ushers. In addition to the bride and groom, James L. Hammill, Esq., of this place, who was the best man, and Miss Lou Wood, of Winchester, Va., the fair maid of honor, there were six bridesmaids and the same number of ushers. The wedding party grouped themselves in artistic position at the altar. Miss C. Ella Rhone was one of the bride'smaids and Mr. Harry Keller officiated gracefully as an usher. Col. D. S. Keller and wife, of Bellefonte, were among the honored guests, and the church was filled with a very fashionable audience.

The officiating clergymen were Rev. George C. Hall, rector of Grace Church, Honesdale, and Rev. James L. Maxwell, rector of the church. Rev. Mr. Hall is a brother-in-law of the groom.

Of course, it will be interesting to our readers to know that the bride wore white satin en train with pearls and vail and carried a white kid prayer book. The maid of honor wore white satin, demi-train, and tulle with diamonds and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids wore cream-colored satins and point d'esprit carrying bouquets of various colored chrysanthemums.

After the ceremony a brilliant reception followed at the home of the bride's mother. A fine collation, music and dancing were the features of the occasion. Among the presents, which were rich and costly, was a pair of elegant diamond and pearl earrings and brooch—the gift of the groom.

Followed by the congratulations of many friends, the happy couple went to New York City, and on their return arrived here at 8.45 o'clock p. m. Tuesday. They will go to Washington City in a few days to reside permanently.

The writer, being personally acquainted with the groom, can and does unite with many others in congratulations to him and his fair bride.

The fine quality of the music and the very splendid appearance of both Mr. Al. G. Field and his minstrel band in their street parade on Monday seemed to act like a charm on the patrons of the Opera House. In the morning but few seats were sold and yet S. R. O. was the sign at 8 o'clock. Many, no doubt, were turned away knowing the house to be packed. The company was fully up to expectations and gave their audience a treat. Modernized minstrelsy is an improvement on that of a few years ago and Al. G. Field has put the latest touches into his entertainment. Artistic finish, pure comedy, and novel laughing hits in part I. of the programme were astonishingly noticeable. As exemplified by this admirable company, minstrelsy has received an impetus of late that makes it ten-fold more interesting and entertaining than it ever was. Refinement is the order of progress with Mr. Field, evidently. Many specialties of a high order and a choice collocation of musical selections, vocally and instrumentally rendered by the highest order of talent, makes it a great show, a company of artists whose merits individually and collectively are unexceptionably high. If the character of the entertainment be fairly guaged by the size (in receipts) of the audience, then Mr. Field gave us the best show Monday night we've yet seen in Bellefonte. Mr. Field and company left us at 6 a. m. going to Philipsburg by a special train. He plays Clearfield, Houtzdale and Tyrone successively.

Mr. Farnsworth, proprietor and manager of the Lock Haven Opera House, came here Monday to catch Field, company and all and carry them back to Lock Haven to play that city again, but it is probable Mr. Farnsworth had his trip up for nothing unless to see Part I of the show that night, for Mr. Field is not likely to cancel Tyrone to play Lock Haven, as he would have to do to satisfy Lock Haven's demands. Al. G. Field's Company is booked up for 87-'8 and unless Mr. Conrad of Tyrone lets him go he'll play in accordance with his bookings and contracts.

—Query—Why don't the weather bureau apprise the people of the coming of such a cold wave as that of Sunday? That's what the weather bureau is for, and when it don't do that it is useless. It is of much benefit to mankind and also woman-kind to know just when the heat and cold are due, and may prevent serious consequences. When people go on a brief journey they don't care to take with them clothing suitable to both the Fourth of July and Christmas, and if the weather bureau will kindly vouchsafe the information, with some assurance of reliability, as to whether the mercury will dance up among the nineties or sink low enough to touch zero it will confer an inestimable benefit. When the cold comes unannounced—and it always does—garments are jerked too suddenly from their summer hiding places and have to be put on before the dust and camphor and other similar preservatives can be shaken from them. Now, the weather bureau don't give us this knowledge. Will some one please inform us what it is for. Perhaps, it don't make a correct forecast of the weather more than once a year—so seldom, indeed, that it flavors of guesswork rather than knowledge based on certain fixed laws.

Convention in Bellefonte, Pa., in Behalf of Foreign Missions.

In accordance with the recommendation of the Presbytery of Huntingdon, and as carrying out the general direction of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, there will be a convention of all the ministers and churches of Centre county in behalf of Foreign Missions, on Thursday, November the 10th, in the Bellefonte Presbyterian Church. In addition to addresses by the ministers of the county there will be several speakers from abroad. Among these we shall have the Rev. Loyal Y. Hays, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Mifflintown, also the Rev. Arthur Mitchell, D. D., of New York City, one of the Secretaries of the Board of Foreign Missions. Other speakers from abroad are expected. There will be three sessions, the morning session from half-past ten to twelve o'clock; the afternoon session from three to five o'clock; and the evening session from seven o'clock to adjournment. We earnestly invite the members of our church throughout the county to unite with us in the service of that day. The General Assembly asks its churches to raise one million dollars this year to send the Gospel to heathen lands. We trust God's people throughout the county will come and learn the wants of the heathen, what is being done for them, their cry for help, so that with warm hearts and open hands we may do our utmost to send men to them with the salvation that Christ died to provide.

How it was Observed.

Hollow-e'en is an old Scottish time of festivity and was supposed to be the night when witches and other mischief-making beings went abroad on baneful midnight errands. The fairies were said to hold grand anniversaries on that night and visit young people in their dreams. It was the night when young people by the performance of spells, discovered their future partners for life, and while sitting at the fireside the young woman see the form of her "intended" in the dancing flames. Burns, in his poem "Hallow-e'en," describes the superstitious customs and beliefs of the Scottish peasantry concerning this festival. It was a night when young people would indulge in revelries, such as playing games, cracking nuts and ducking their heads into tubs, filled with water, for apples and coins. The custom was brought to this country early in the sixteenth century, and to this day it is still observed all over New England. Lately the custom of observing it has died out in many parts of the country, but the young people of Bellefonte occasionally give Hollow-e'en parties at which they make merry. They sit around the fire as in "ye olden time" cracking nuts and eating apples. All kinds of games are played. A few of the girls will go into a dark room with a lighted candle, and, holding it aloft, will look over their left shoulders into a mirror to see the good-looking fellows whom fate will give them for lovers.

—Perhaps the cleanest, purest and most wholesome entertainment given in Bellefonte last season was Moore & Vivian's great Yankee comedy, "Our Jonathan." It will pay Bellefonte another visit on the 8th of this month. The play has been re-written and improved and is supplied with new scenery and new wardrobes. It will be on the night of election day, and people can attend the entertainment and come out of the show in time to hear the election returns before they retire to their homes.

Let us have a Y. M. C. A. Building.

All who attended the anniversary exercises of the Y. M. C. A. at Bellefonte on Sunday evening, Oct. 23, must certainly have been impressed with the necessity of a special building for the work of the association, and also that a grand and noble work might be done here as elsewhere by the aid of such suitable building. But how shall we get it? The writer believes that, were the young men of Bellefonte able, a new and substantial building would soon be seen. We also believe that if the young business men had the proper encouragement from those who are older, and have grown wealthy in better days, that this end would be accomplished without much delay. It is a fact, that is discouraging to us young men, that many of our citizens are in the habit of sending to the larger cities for some of the necessities of life, which can be had at home, and in many cases for less money than they pay city dealers. Even though you may be able once in a while to save a small percentage, what is this to you who are blessed with an abundance of this world's goods, and who are so much more able to pay us a living profit, than those who depend on their daily earnings for their livelihood?

Then patronize your neighbors, give them the benefit of the profits on the goods you buy, and thus enable them to give of their increase to the noblest work there is before us, the work of raising our fellow man to a state of pure desire. In order to convince any who may read this article, of my convictions in this matter, I will say that I am a young man endeavoring to do an honorable business and earning my bread in the sweat of my brow, and know whereof I speak when I say that if I were to receive, each year, the profits paid city dealers, in excess over my prices, for exactly the same goods in my line, I would gladly, and could very well afford, to increase my annual subscription to the Y. M. C. A. of Bellefonte, at least ten fold. Then encourage us as friends of this movement by your patronage in all things, or give us a trifle out of your abundance, and we will ever honor you, and God's name, through you, may be glorified.

A young man in business and a friend of the Y. M. C. A.

About a Citizen of Bellefonte.

As we announced at the time, Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., pastor of the Bellefonte Methodist church, spent Sunday, October 23, at Spruce Creek, Huntingdon county, assisting at the re dedication of a Methodist church. A correspondent who wrote from that place to the Huntingdon Daily Local News, gives his impressions of the reverend Doctor as follows:

Rev. Dr. Monroe, of Bellefonte preached two elegant sermons, one in the morning, the other in the evening. All were eager to hear him speak, the house being full on both occasions, the congregation being deeply impressed with his eloquence. The debt of the church was about paid. The Dr. speaks well of newspapers. He said that while in Florida, conducting a dedicatory service, some years ago, he told a story that the reporters got hold of, the consequence was that he got up the next morning, as some men do, quite famous. The story was this: "A man who had been in the habit of attending church, and who had a poor memory, came home one day, telling his wife that he knew it this time. In replying to her question asking what it was he said, "Wheresoever two or three Methodists are gathered together, they are bound to hold a collection," confounding it with the real text, "Wheresoever two or three are gathered together in my name there am I in the midst of them." The Dr. pleased all. We congratulate the congregation and their pastor Rev. Elliott in having such success.

—Bears are more numerous in Centre county this year than before for a long time. The one which walked into Milesburg last week has been mentioned in this paper. It greatly frightened the people of that town, but no efforts seems to have been made to kill it. One little girl was not frightened at all when she first saw the animal, because she supposed it was a dog. She was going to pet and fondle it, but was prevented from doing so by the older folks. It went on its way undisturbed and is still at large for noted hunters to follow and kill, if they desire to.

—The improvements being made at the State College will be wonderfully important. The electric light is illuminating the entire building. To do so tests the power of the apparatus to its utmost capacity. The conservatories and the floracultural and horticultural structures are in process of erection. They will be heated by steam and also by the rays of the sun. They are located directly back of the flower garden.

—Too late for insertion last week we received notice regarding interesting services which were to be held on Sunday, October 30, in the Union church at Unionville. If the programme announced was carried out the Presbyterian and Baptist congregations, of that place, met together in the Union church and Rev. Mr. Elliott preached. The appointments of the two pastors, every three months, come on the same hour, and so far at such times they have held Union meetings, thus proving how good it is for brethren to dwell together in unity. Rev. Mr. Laning, of the Baptist church, is holding extra meetings at Martha Furnace.

Ex-Judge Orvis was seen coming in on the Snow Shoe train Monday morning carrying a nice collection of game—the fruits of his skill as a hunter. ### A Pastor Received.

There was an adjourned meeting of the Presbytery of Huntingdon in Tyrone on Tuesday afternoon, the special purpose of which was to receive Rev. J. R. Davies, the new pastor of the Tyrone Presbyterian church, into the Huntingdon Presbytery. Rev. William Laurie, D. D., of this place, was present and a full attendance of the members, including Rev. Dr. Hamill. The moderator, Rev. Dr. Laurie, called the gathering to order promptly at 1 30 o'clock.

The Tyrone Herald, from which we take the particulars of this meeting, says that the reading of the minutes was dispensed with excepting such as referred to present work. Mr. Schuyler of Lemont accepted a call to the Everett station after some discussion. His examination by Dr. Hamill and Rev. Baine occupied the best part of the afternoon, after which his ordination was agreed to, to take place in the evening. The session closed with the formal reception of the Rev. J. R. Davies as a member of the Presbytery.

Before the pastor had been formally received into the Presbytery of Huntingdon, some unfinished business was taken up, which had been set aside for adjustment at this adjourned meeting. The installation of Rev. J. R. Davies, as pastor of the Society was appointed to take place on November 24, at the request of the pastor, and an installation committee appointed to perform the ceremony; Rev. Dr. Moore to preside at the installation, to preach the sermon and propose constitutional questions; these duties to be performed by Rev. Dr. Knox, president of the Lafayette College, in the absence of Dr. Moore. The Rev. Dr. Freeman to charge the pastor, and Rev. J. H. Mathers to charge the people.

Aroused at Midnight.

Mr. Robert McCalmont had a disagreeable experience on Monday night. If he did know that it was All Hallow-e'en, and that the small boy would be up to his pranks even until late at night, his first nap had eliminated that thought from his mind. He retired to pleasant dreams at the usual hour. At midnight the wild clanging of the street door bell was heard. Mr. McCalmont awakened and at once concluded that something was wrong at the limekilns of McCalmont & Co. Dressing himself in haste, he made all speed to the lime kilns, where fortunately, all was in the proper condition. Before he left some one reminded him that it was the festival of All Hallow-e'en and now, we understand, he denies that he had been asleep at all.

—Rev. DeWitt Talmage, on Sunday last, preached one of his strong and brilliant sermons in Brooklyn Tabernacle. In it he dwelt with impressive force on the sinfulness of not keeping the Sabbath day holy. In that he was right. His sermon was printed in a thousand newspapers on Monday morning. To accomplish this it was absolutely necessary for some work to be done on Sunday, either in the transmission of the message or in putting the orginal copy in type from which to print the necessary impressions. Does Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage believe that the end justifies the means?

—The criticism is made that the spectacle of newspapers which are issued on Sunday pleading for the sanctity of the Sabbath is not a pleasant or convincing one. We are sorry that any paper is published on Sunday. But such a plea may be made consistently by the REPUBLICAN; hence we say-vote the Republican State and local tickets, be happy and preserve inviolate the customs, laws and principles which have made this country glorious.

—The season has been a good one for outdoor work, but there is no telling how much longer it will last. The sudden cold wave which came sweeping unannounced upon us on Sunday indicates that it may be brief. Already, the comment is heard that it is rather cold to work outdoors and soon it will be impossible to mix mortar or lay stone and brick.

—The new Opera House at Eagleville, which was dedicated on Monday night by the Howorth Hibernica Company, was crowded and the entertainment was much liked. It was a sort of gala time and everybody enjoyed themselves.

MARRIED.

KING—HAINES.—On Saturday evening, October 29, by Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., Elisha C. King, of Sunbury, Pa., and Miss Lucy M. Haines, of this place.

A Tribute.

WILLIAMS.—At her home in Lemont, Friday, October, 7, 1887, Mrs. Annie Elizabeth, wife of John Harvey Williams, aged 32 years.

Farewell, dear Annie, a long farewell,
For we shall meet no more
Till we are raised with thee to dwell
On Zion's happy shore.

Our friend and sister, lo! is dead.
The cold and lifeless clay
Has made in dust its silent bed,
And there it must decay.

But is she dead? No, no—she lives.
Her happy spirit flies
To Heaven above and there receives
The long expected prize.

Farewell, dear Annie, again farewell;
Soon we shall rise to thee;
And when we meet no tongue can tell
How great our joys shall be.

Written by her cousin. M. J. W.
